THEY'RE ON THEIR WAY

. . . Rocket Riders To Walk On Moon

By The Associated Press

Three men wearing American flags on their left sleeves rocketed away from earth Wednesday, to take mankind's first walk on the moon.

From some 60,000 miles out, the astronauts beamed back color television pictures of earth, catching the blue-green bisc over the Pacific Ocean.

Second Try

It was the second try by civilian Neil A. Armstrong, Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins to capture a television view for earthmen. The first try failed because of antenna trouble on earth.

"Hey, Houston," Buzz Aldrin called down, "you suppose you could turn the earth a little bit so we could get a little bit more than just water?"

"Roger, 11," acknowledged mission control. "I don't think we've got much control over that. Looks like you'll have to settle for water."

Armstrong provided the brief narrative for the 15-minute TV show, which was received at the Goldstone Tracking Station in California and taped for later relay to Houston.

"We're seeing the center of the earth as viewed from the spacecraft," Armstrong said, "and the eastern Pacific Ocean."

The television show came less than 12 hours after launch. The day was nearly over. The major maneuvers went off without a hitch. The astronauts were ahead of the flight plan, and mission control gave them permission to sleep two hours early — about 8 p.m.

From the minute they blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 8:32 a.m. CDT — a shade over half a second late — their troubles were all small.

By launch time more than a million people had flocked to the beaches around Cape Kennedy. Television via satellite and ground relay beamed the launch to an estimated 528 million people in at least 33 nations around the world.

Waxing Crescent Moon

Everything was perfect for Apollo 11, after a countdown that was always on or ahead of schedule. Two and a half hours after launch, a final rocket burn broke the grip of earth's gravity and sent Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins toward the waxing crescent moon, a scant 100 hours away.

"You're on your way now," announced mission control.

An hour and a half later, the astronauts disengaged from their launch rocket, docked with the lunar lander garaged inside the rocket's hull and fetched it, ready for the long coast to the moon.

Radio commands from the ground sent the now useless third stage of the Saturn 5 rocket into a long orbit around the sun, to get it out of the way.

Worry Straightened Out

The only trace of worry came with a faulty indicator light on the spacecraft control panel. A check of systems straightened it out. Flight controllers said there were a number of "funnies" — small aberrations that would be chased down during the night.

The crew was concerned slightly because they had used more maneuvering fuel than expected. Mission control said to forget it, it was no problem.

The stoic attitude in the spacecraft contrasted with the thrills the flight created around the world.

Voices Quiet

Their voices were quiet, almost flat, clicking off mechanically the details of blastoff and flight. Their heartbeats, recorded on earth, were less excited than on their earlier space shots.

The flight was both the culmination of an ancient dream and the honoring of a pledge made eight years ago by the late President Kennedy, who issued the cold war challenge that set Americans on their way to the moon. The astronauts plan to plant an American flag on the Sea of Tranquility, the darkened left eye of the man in the moon.

The American spacecraft carries a plaque, to be left on the lunar surface, saying, "We came in peace for all mankind."

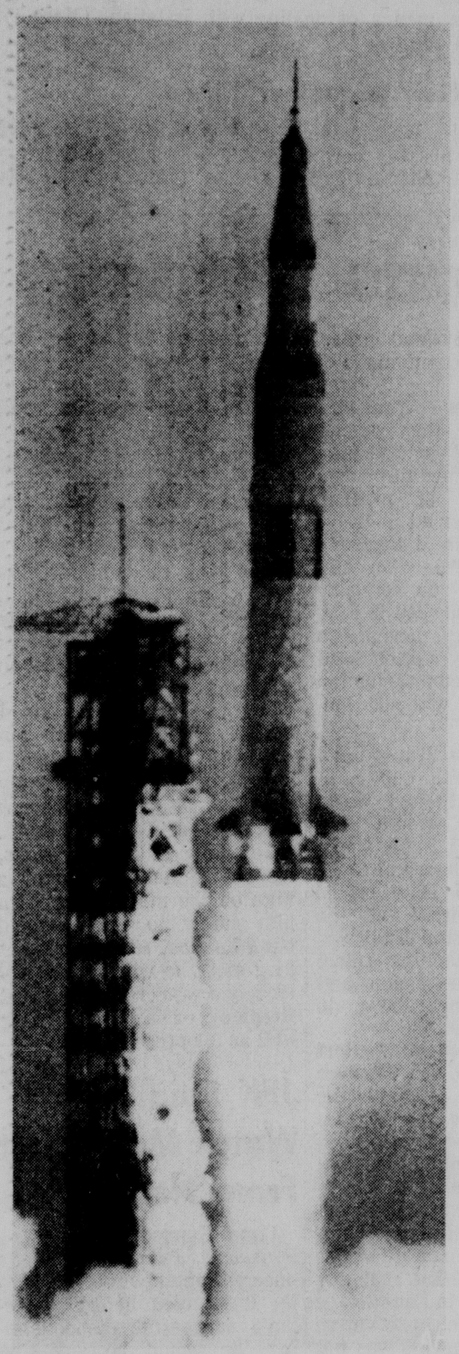
Among the very important persons invited by the space agency to watch the launch from bleachers 3½ miles away was Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who heads the nation's space council.

Favors Going To Mars

In an interview he said he believed America should plan to put a man on Mars. "Someone is going to do it," he said. (More on Page 2.)

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was also in the VIP stands. A prime mover in space affairs from his days as senator and later as President Kennedy's expert on space affairs, this was the first launch he had seen first hand. When the rocket rose from the pad and the shock waves shook the spectators, he shouted, "Come on baby . . . Go baby."

At the White House, President Nixon watched on television with Air Force Col. Frank Borman who rode to the moon in Apollo 8. Sunday, Borman, a lay leader in the Episcopal Church, will take part in special White House services for congressmen, diplomats and other members of government.



ROCKET . . . goes up, up and away.

Key Road Bill Bolstered, Advanced

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Wednesday put the teeth back in the keystone highway classification bill and pushed it over its first floor hurdle on a 29-0 count.

The measure, LB1302, often described by Sen. Jerome Warner as the most important proposal in the highway package, provides for functional classification of all 103,000 miles of Nebraska highways, roads and streets.

Two changes written into the measure by the Public Works Committee were modified at Warner's request.

Back into the bill went the penalty section which will permit the proposed new Board of Public Roads Classification and Standards, after public hearing, to withhold 10% of the alloted highway user revenue from any municipality or county which constructs roads below minimum standards.

Any such penalty would be subject to legislative review and court action.

Public Works Chairman Rick Budd of Nebraska City supported Warner's effort to provide a penalty, suggesting that the bill "needs a small amount of teeth to accomplish the ends we are striving toward."

Earlier, membership of the proposed new board was modified from the committee's plan to meet some of Warner's objections.

Three Laymen

The 11-member board will now be composed of two state representatives, three county representatives, three municipal representatives and three laymen representing the general public.

It would develop criteria for determining the functional classification of all roads and streets, and develop minimum standards of design, construction and maintenance for each classification.

The Department of Roads, after consultation with local authorities, would assign a functional classification to each segment of highway, road and street in the state.

Construction below minimum standards in special circumstances could be undertaken if it received prior approval from the board.

Assurance

Warner said legislative acceptance of the penalty provision should give the public "assurance that roads will be built to reasonable standards."

The penalty section was revised on a 27-4 vote.

Without LB1302, Warner said, he "could not justify the increased revenues" for highway construction. This bill, he said, will provide "the improved management and accounting" which should assure the public that the money is properly and efficiently expended.

Three revenue bills, which would boost highway allocation funding by $19.5 million a year, have previously received first stage floor endorsement.

No Increase In School Lunch Prices Expected Despite Anticipated Deficit

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

No increases in the prices of school lunches are expected to be requested for next year even though there are indications that the food services will operate at a loss of $30,000.

Lincoln Supt. John Prasch reported that he does not expect to recommend either raising school lunch prices or including a contingency fund in the 1969-70 budget in case of a deficit.

A $65,000 increase in lunchroom workers' salaries due to pay raises and the addition of personnel to run the new Goodrich Junior High school cafeteria may cause the district's first operating deficit in the lunchroom program, according to Associate Supt. Dr. Robert Den Hartog.

Not Too Concerned

School officials, however, are not very concerned about the predicted loss due to the possibility of increased federal aid to school lunch programs next year.

In addition, the food services budget has a cash operating balance of some $240,000 which could absorb the loss, Den Hartog said. In the event of a loss, it would be decided next year whether to raise lunch prices or to start subsidizing the food services operation from local tax funds, he said.

Den Hartog estimated food services receipts from sale of food and government cash at $1,220,000 for 1969-70 and expenditures at $1,250,000.

Received Aid

For the first time this year the Lincoln district received a federal reimbursement, totaling some $12,000, for free meals served. The district served 117,099 meals, an average of 688 per day, to children at no cost, he said.

Federal money at the rate of 15 cents per free meal was granted to the district for only part of the year, Den Hartog pointed out.

State officials allocating the federal funds previously had contended that the district did not serve a high enough percentage of free meals to qualify for the reimbursement program, although some individual schools would have qualified.

Nixon Rules Out Wage, Price Lids

Washington (AP) — The White House said Wednesday "the administration has ruled out wage and price controls as a way of dealing with inflation under conditions that are now foreseeable."

Seeking to end confusion over President Nixon's position and that of his top economic advisers, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen:

"The President is not for wage and price controls. In the past he has consistently taken this position. This administration is pursuing a course of action to cool the economy and the strategy which this administration is following does not include wage and price controls."

Ziegler made his statement, he said, after talking with President Nixon, Dr. Arthur F. Burns, counselor to the President, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy and Chairman Paul McCracken, of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Kennedy had said wage and price controls might have to be considered if Congress did not extend the income tax surcharge. But he made the comment under questioning by a congressional committee and said at the time he did not favor such controls.

Ziegler said the administration feels that its present course of action will be successful in cooling the inflationary trend of the economy.

Nixon Urges Holiday For Landing On Moon

Washington (AP) — President Nixon urged Wednesday that all Americans be given a holiday Monday to celebrate the scheduled first footfall of man on the moon — "a moment of transcendent drama."

Because Nixon's legal powers to declare an extra national holiday are limited, he issued a proclamation declaring Monday to be a "National Day of Participation."

Except for essential employes in national security and public service areas, all federal workers will be excused from their jobs on that day.

And Nixon urged the authorities of states and cities — and private employers — to make similar arrangements.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said it was Nixon's hope that industry, retail establishments, banks, stock exchanges and other places of private employment would close Monday so all Americans can "share in the significant events of that day."

NO DECISIONS

No decisions have been reached about closing city, county and state offices Monday, when the Apollo 11 moon landing is scheduled to take place.

Miss Lois Tefft, secretary to Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, said the governor had told her that the decision to keep state offices open or close them would depend upon the wishes of the Legislature. The governor is expected to return from Cape Kennedy, Fla., by Thursday afternoon.

Earlier Wednesday, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, speaker of the Legislature and acting governor in the absence of Tiemann, said he would leave the decision to the governor.

Warner said the Legislature would be sounded out on what it wants to do, but he would guess the lawmakers will undertake some "appropriate recognition" while remaining in session Monday.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Wednesday night he would reach a decision about city offices Thursday.

County Commissioner William Grossman noted that no decision has been reached about whether county offices will be open Monday.

Surprise Gift Planned For Young Sage Boy

Aboard USS Hornet (UPI) — Douglas Sage, 6, whose three brothers were killed in the collision between the USS Evans and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne last month, will get a surprise package from the USS Hornet, the prime Apollo 11 recovery ship.

Newsmen said a packet of souvenirs, including photographs of astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins, will be mailed to Douglas at Niobrara, Neb., a community of less than 800 persons.

"One of our group spent some time with Douglas and his parents after the Evans-Melbourne tragedy and figured Douglas would get a kick out of receiving some Apollo 11 souvenirs. He's a real little sailor," the photographer said.

The souvenir packet will also include emblems and decals from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and several news agencies. The emblems were collected by photographers aboard the Hornet to cover the July 24 splashdown.

Douglas' three brothers, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sage, were among the 74 Americans killed in the collision in the South Pacific.

Half Of Vehicle Sales Tax Urged For County Use

Kimball (AP) — The directors of the Western Nebraska United Chambers of Commerce at a meeting here adopted a resolution calling for half of the state sales tax on motor vehicles to go to the counties.

Under the resolution the other 50% would go into the state highway fund to be used for road maintenance and construction in the towns, cities and counties.

Moon Ship On Way To Fulfill Ageless Dream

(C) New York Times News Service

Cape Kennedy — The Apollo 11 moon ship and its crew streaked across space on its way toward fulfilling an ageless dream — to walk on the moon. (More on Page 1.)

Monday Declared 'Holiday'

Washington — After watching the fiery lift off of the Apollo 11 on television, President Nixon declared next Monday as a "Day of National Participation." (More on Page 1.)

Agnew Favors Mars Goal

Cape Kennedy — Vice President Agnew said after watching the Apollo 11 launch that he has been urging that the nation set a new goal of landing men on Mars by the end of the century. (More on Page 2.)

Holding Down Casualties Urged

Washington — In planning for further troop withdrawals, the Nixon administration is appealing to field commanders in Vietnam to attempt to hold down casualties. A lower casualty list is held to be as important to American public opinion as withdrawals. An adjustment of tactics to reduce losses is also said to be considered as a "reply" to the current Communist lull in the war.

War Said Subsiding

Guatamala City — The war between El Salvador and Honduras seemed to be slowly subsiding largely because of a lack of war materials, according to neutral sources. (More on Page 12.)

Desai Forced Out

New Delhi — India's Prime Minister Indira Ghandi has forced Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai out of her cabinet. The surprise move came a week after Desai joined a group in an attempt to outmaneuver Mrs. Ghandi on the nomination of a Congress Party candidate for president.

Wage-Price Lids Ruled Out

Washington — The White House has at last ruled out wage and price controls as a means of dealing with inflation. (More on Page 1.)

New Argument Raised

Washington — The opposition forces have raised a new objection to the Safeguard antiballistic missiles system. (More on Page 33.)

Agnew Likes Mars As Goal

Washington (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew proposed Wednesday that Mars be the next U.S. space goal, but Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said a moon landing should mark a shift in priorities to earth problems.

Agnew said at Cape Kennedy, Fla., where he watched the Apollo 11 launch, that "somebody is going to do it" — land on Mars — and it ought to be the United States.

As head of the National Aeronautics and Space Council Agnew said he prefers Mars over Venus because "it seems a more compatable climate."

Von Braun In Favor

Newsmen at Cape Kennedy asked Dr. Wernher Von Braun, director of NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center which oversaw development of the Saturn 5 man to the moon rocket, who might be in favor of the man to Mars idea. He replied: "Speaking for myself, I'd say here's one more voice."

But Kennedy, the Massachusetts Democrat who is looked upon as a leading possibility for his party's 1972 presidential nomination, joined Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana in calling for a revision of national priorities to meet the problems of war, hunger and poverty on earth.

Kennedy noted that the Apollo flight involves more than just a landing on the moon and return with some of its dust and rocks. He said other moon explorations are scheduled in the next two years.

"The space program after that ought to be fitted into our other national priorities in an orderly manner," he said. "We have important and demanding needs here on earth that demand early attention."

Mansfield said he honors the accomplishments of U.S. astronauts. But he added:

"We have a lot of problems here on earth that we have to face up to. When we solve those problems we can consider further space efforts. The needs of the people on earth, and especially in this country, should have priority."

To Attack Space Program?

These statements were interpreted as reflecting a Democratic determination to add the space program to the high military outlays already under attack in a search for savings that could finance antipoverty and other projects.

This was in line with the assertion of the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, as he and other leaders of the Poor People's Campaign viewed the moon launch at Cape Kennedy.

"America has mixed up priorities," Abernathy said. "I'm happy because we are going to the moon, but I'd be just a little more happy if we had learned how to live down here on earth."

Senate Republicans avoided forecasts on the future of the space program.

JOAN ALDRIN . . . says husband sounded "pretty wonderful" when she talked to him on the phone.

Wives Of Astronauts Both Worried, Excited

Space Center, Houston (AP) — When the countdown on Apollo 11 reached zero Wednesday, Joan Aldrin a thousand miles away at home in Texas, touched a nervous finger to her lower lip and said nothing.

And when it was sure the first dangerous step to the moon had gone well, she murmured: "Wouldn't it be nice for them to be counting down to splashdown now?"

At the same moment, Joan Collins in her Nassau Bay home a block away was saying, "I think it's beautiful. I'm glad it's under way."

Armstrongs 'Excited'

Jan Armstrong and her two sons were on a private boat on the Banana River near the moonport in Florida "terribly excited."

"We were all very quiet and in awe of this spectacular we were watching," she said.

Not until their husbands quit circling the earth and set course for the moon did the three wives talk about the flight.

Sorensen Writes JFK Made Decision

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Former Nebraskan Theodore C. Sorensen was special counsel to President Kennedy. He is now a partner in the law firm, Paul, Weiss, Goldberg, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison.)

©The New York Times

By Theodore C. Sorensen

The decision to go to the moon was not made by the Cabinet, the National Security Council or even the National Space Council. Nor was it made merely to compete in the cold war or to recoup lost prestige.

It was made after intensive study and for a variety of complex reasons by one man, John F. Kennedy, 35th president of the United States.

As was true of most of President Kennedy's decisions, there was no one day when the final choice was made. Months, indeed years, of discussion and deliberation were reflected in his conclusion. Expert analyses and wise counsel were sought from many. A tentative premise grew into a firm conclusion only after it had been carefully studied, the costs calculated, the responsibilities allocated and the Congress consulted and convinced.

April 13, 1961, Crucial

If there was one day that was more crucial than all the others, it may well have been April 13, 1961. On the preceding day the Soviet Union had awed the world by becoming the first nation to place a man in orbit.

The wondrous round-the-world flight of Yuri Gagarin dramatized as nothing else could the Soviet Union's superiority in rocket thrust and manned space exploration.

World News

Kennedy had wired congratulations to (Soviet Premier) Khruschev on April 12 and accelerated his own thinking on the subject. On the following morning, Thursday, April 13, he asked me to conduct a brief review of America's options in the space race and report to him that evening just prior to his discussing the subject with a Time magazine correspondent.

Calls In Wiesner, Dryden

Joined by Budget Director David Bell, I called to my office White House science adviser Jerome Wiesner and Deputy Space Administrator Hugh Dryden, the two foremost experts in government on this nation's prospects in space and with somewhat differing points of view.

After several hours of probing and prodding, we briefed the president on our tentative conclusions:

If the United States, in order to demonstrate convincingly to all the world the leadership and superiority of our science and strength, felt compelled to compete with the Soviet Union in dramatic manned space achievements, the latter's early lead in big-booster development made it unlikely that the United States, no matter how much it accelerated its efforts, could score a "first" in reaching any of the intermediate rungs on the ladder of manned space exploration — astronaut orbits lasting several days, then two and three men in an orbiting spacecraft, then possibly a space laboratory, perhaps a fixed space way station, and eventually circumnavigation of the moon without landing.

If the Soviets still disdained to cooperate with our comparatively infant effort, we in all likelihood would lag behind on all of those steps, which nevertheless had to be taken. We had little or no chance to be "first" until the most dramatic step of all was to be taken: landing space explorers on the moon and safely returning them to earth.

A highly concentrated effort might — and it was no more than a "might" — enable the United States to achieve that powerful victory for peace, if it started pointing in that direction immediately.

The president listened, questioned, deliberated. A dozen more immediate crises were on his mind, ranging from the Congo to Laos to the Bay of Pigs. The conservative mood of the Congress was not receptive to controversial new spending programs.

A race in which one's competitor advanced in secret, virtually uninhibited by the limitations necessarily imposed by a constitutional democracy, was not a welcome undertaking.

He would not make a final commitment to us or the Time correspondent that evening. But it was clear to me from his questions and reactions that in his heart a decision was taking shape: if the Soviets still refused to join in a cooperative space effort, thereby assuring all the world that neither superpower would seek to dominate this new ocean through national, military or other hostile means, the United States would focus its space effort on being first to the moon.

Six weeks later he stood before the Congress announcing his decision.

Congress overwhelmingly voted to "set sail on this new sea," as JFK described it. Like many of his decisions, his determination to land a man on the moon and return him safely to earth would show its most striking results long after he was dead; and its origin was credited by him to many of his advisers as well as his predecessor.

JFK Said He'd Watch Moon Shot From Heaven

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — President John F. Kennedy once told members of his family if he died before America's successful moon landing, he would be watching "up there in heaven in a rocking chair and I'll have a better view of it than anybody."

Kennedy made the remark more than two years before his death, it was revealed Wednesday by Sargent Shriver, Kennedy's brother-in-law and U.S. ambassador to France.

World's Focus On Apollo 11

London (AP) — "Boys, come back safely," bannered a West German newspaper.

In many European cities streets were almost deserted as citizens stayed with their television sets.

A housewife in Frankfurt, perched on her husband's shoulders in front of a television shop, yelled, "This is a day we won't forget."

World Watches

Around the world Wednesday people had their attention focused on three Americans aboard Apollo 11 as it roared off to land a man on a celestial body other than his own for the first time.

In Lancashire, England, David Threlfall neared the end of a five-year wait to collect $24,000. In 1964 he placed a $24 bet with a bookie at 1,000 to 1 odds that man would reach the moon before 1971.

Former Vice President Humphrey sat in the Moscow office of Lev Tolkunov, chief editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia. As the two men read dispatches about the successful launch of Apollo 11, Tolkunov offered a toast wishing the crew "every success" in their moon landing attempt.

Soviets Give Report

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported the Apollo liftoff with usual swiftness. In a dispatch from New York only eight minutes after takeoff, it named the three astronauts and said: "Their mission is to land two cosmonauts, Armstrong and Aldrin, on the moon and return the whole crew to earth."

There was little fresh word, however, on the Soviets' own moonbound craft — Luna 15. Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory reported a 28-minute burst of signals from the unmanned lunik that ended just four minutes before Apollo 11 leapt into the sky.

Broadcasts in Israel, Lebanon, Cairo, Mecca, Iran and the Sudan also gave the flight strong attention.

South Americans in capitals such as Caracas, Lima and Santiago paused to watch or listen to the takeoff.

Local Concern Results In Migrant Day School

. . . 'Volunteer' Programs Prior To 1965 Federal Help

By CRAIG CALLAWAY
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Scottsbluff — Ricky Sanchez could have a life different than a migratory farm worker's — if someone took the trouble to make the point to Ricky Sanchez.

With federal support, several people in Scottsbluff, Bayard and Alliance have spent the past six weeks making that effort. The verdict: "It's meeting the need," a teacher says.

In Scottsbluff, residents have been working at it for 11 years, going back well beyond the time federal money was sent to help. It's estimated the Scottsbluff area is an April-to-July stopping place for 3,000 migrant workers and their families. While the elders work in the sugar beet fields, the children 13 and under make up part of the estimated 300,000 youngsters in the migrant stream across the country each summer.

Local concern produced efforts first in 1959, when the Scottsbluff and Gering United Church Women established a three-week Bible school for the youngsters. From the start, lessons in such practical skills as tooth brushing were coupled with the Bible lessons.

Nebraska News

Similar "volunteer" programs were held through 1964, and then federal money relief came in 1965, under the Migrant Health Act.

Funds were used that year to establish Nebraska's "pilot project" at Scottsbluff. With city co-operation, the Migrant Day School was housed in the Scottsbluff Junior High School, where it remains.

Funding programs changed, and this summer the entire budget for the three cities in the western Nebraska program, amounting to $134,955, was handled with "Title I" funds, which, generally speaking, are intended for the benefit of "educationally and culturally deprived" children.

Thus, "enrichment" and "practicality" are key words in the programs. As Don Yanik and Bernard Goerke, head teacher and coordinator of the Scottsbluff program put it, a primary aim is to let the children see they can find other ways to make a living. Though "academic" subjects are included, most of what's taught is meant to be "very practical," Yanik said.

Ten teachers and 23 "aides" are included on the Scottsbluff paid staff, and volunteers are still included in the program. No government money is allocated to provide a nursery for the babies of the migrants, so the women who got it all going a decade ago still do their part, tending to the "very young" children.

The children are bused to the junior high for a 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. day, while the parents and youngsters 14 and older spend the day in the beet fields. They are fed two hot meals and get recreation and rest time as well as the classroom work. To keep interest strong throughout the day, everything is aimed at being as much "fun" as possible, Yanik said.

For example, the 10 to 13-year-old boys were taught job interview techniques this summer, as well as more "mechanical" things like the basic use of tools. Girls that age learned hair care, and got practice in shopping and food preparation.

Even if there were no other opportunities presently, the day approaches, farm authorities say, when machinery and chemicals will take over much of the beet-weeding job, and today's migrants won't have a choice but to find new work.

"Withdrawing" just won't work, Yanik thought, "they've got to be a part of society."

Yanik said, "I know the program's working . . . I can see it in their manner, their dress, in their 'attitude' in general. . .

"It might not be perfect," he said, "but I feel it's meeting the need."

Series Of Tornado Clouds Skip Across Eastern Area

Several tornadoes and funnel clouds were reported late Wednesday afternoon and evening, mostly in Polk, Boone, Platte and Butler Counties.

The public reported a tornado touched ground 10 miles northwest of Surprise, but there were no reports of damage, according to the Butler County sheriff's office at David City.

The Polk County sheriff's office at Osceola said that it had reports of a tornado heading toward Silver Creek and another northwest of Bellwood. Officials noted that there were no indications of damage.

No Damage

A tornado was sighted by police and the Boone County sheriff near Spalding, but no damage was reported.

At Grand Island, some 47 miles away, winds gusted to about 57 miles an hour during a storm there.

North Loup received a downpour of 2.20 inches of rain in 30 minutes according to the U.S. Weather Bureau at Grand Island.

A state Game Commissioner examiner reported sighting a tornado on the ground southeast of Columbus and moving eastward along the Platte River.

There were also unconfirmed reports by the public of tornadoes southwest of Bellwood, north of Shelby and north of the Waterloo city limits.

No damage was reported from any of the tornadoes or funnel clouds.

Mrs. Huss Given Award From Ag College Editors

Columbia, Mo. — A University of Nebraska home economics editor was revealed Wednesday as one of five recipients of the coveted Pioneer ACE award given by the American Association of Agricultural College Editors, (AAACE).

The award to Mrs. Janet Huss, an NU Department of Information staff member, was announced during the AAACE annual meeting in session at the University of Missouri.

The Pioneer ACE award is for high professional attainment by agricultural or home economics editors 35 years of age or younger who work in Land Grant colleges and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Mrs. Huss is a native of Nebraska City and a 1966 graduate of NU. She joined the Department of Information staff in 1966 following employment as a student assistant and previous work with Radio Station KNCY, Nebraska City.

Edgar Driver Dies In Crash

Edgar (UPI) — Dennis L. Jensen, 24, Edgar, was killed early Wednesday morning when the car he was driving went out of control and struck a tree at the south edge of town.

Clay County Sheriff Lloyd Pontine said Jensen was alone in the car.

The death was the 189th in Nebraska traffic this year, compared with 231 on this date a year ago.

Senior Citizens Center Readied For Sidney Area

Sidney (AP) — Work has begun on the remodeling of the former Kansas-Nebraska Gas Co., building in Sidney which is to become the first Senior Citizens Center to serve this area.

More than $14,000 has been made available for the project, 75% coming from federal sources and the remainder from the city.

Glenn Weller, director of the center, said the plans call for expandable meeting rooms, a recreation room, kitchen, large well-equipped rest rooms and an office.

He said the center may be in use as early as July 25.

Switching Error Is Given Blame In Power Outage

McCook (AP) — An error in a switching operation at the Veverly Substation of the Nebraska Public Power System near here was blamed Wednesday for a 25-minute power outage in a large area of southwest Nebraska late Tuesday.

The outage occurred in the area served by the Southwest Public Power District of the Rural Electrification Administration.

It affected all of Dundy and Chase Counties, the area of Hitchcock County north of the Republican River and one township in Red Willow County.

Spokesmen for the Southwest Public Power District said the switch was being made by a NPPS employe and was necessitated because of heavier loads caused by the hot weather.

Storm Of Protest Greets McNeil

Hastings (AP) — State Tax Commissioner Murrell McNeil and his staff ran into a storm of protest here Wednesday from officials from 16 south central Nebraska counties opposed to increasing rural and urban assessed valuations as proposed by McNeil's office.

The commissioner's office was especially criticized for not giving counties more advance notice of the hearings, for failure to supply them with copies of evidence and exhibits presented by the state and for failure to be more specific in designating which classes of property are involved in the blanket increases.

Almost without exception, the counties objected strongly to using land sales as a factor in determining the proposed increases.

At the outset of the hearing, McNeil said the purpose of the recommended increases was to equalize property values between counties and between real and personal property.

Adams County Assessor Roscoe Story said that if figures proposed by McNeil were adopted, Class I irrigated land in the county would go from $320 an acre to $620, making it the highest of any farmland in the state.

Story contended that irrigated land in Hall County is more valuable.

Story also objected because commercial property is included under both urban and rural classifications, whereas it should be in a class by itself.

He said the use of 14 land sales in Adams County as a factor in recommending a 94% increase in rural valuations was unrealistic in view of the fact that there were 127 such sales last year.

Spokesmen for Clay County objected particularly to an increase in urban valuations, saying that many small towns have several vacant houses that, when sold, bring far less than they would in a larger community.

In addition to land sales, McNeil's staff said that other factors used in determining the recommended increases included earnings, location, desirability, comparison with like property, market value and zoning.

York County officials questioned McNeil and his staff repeatedly in efforts to determine what weight or per cent of total consideration was given each factor.

Other counties represented included Kearney, Phelps, Harlan, Franklin, Webster, Nuckolls, Thayer, Hall, Fillmore, Hamilton, Polk, Merrick and Buffalo.

A hearing for several southeastern Nebraska counties will be Friday at Beatrice.

Heat Is Blamed For Deaths Of 2 Zoo Animals

Omaha (UPI) — The heat wave which has claimed the lives of hundreds of livestock in Nebraska the past few days also has been blamed on the deaths of two baby animals at the Henry Doorly Zoo here.

One was a five-day old rare yellow-back duiker, an antelope believed to have been the first of its species born in the western hemisphere.

Zoo Director Warren Thomas identified the other animal as a 10-day-old bison calf.

Summary Of Conditions

The latest surface map shows a cold front on line from northern Lake Michigan to east central Iowa, southeastern Nebraska and near the Omaha-Council Bluffs area into west central Kansas. By noon Thursday, the front will become semistationary and will be on line from extreme northern Indiana to extreme northeastern Misouri into northeastern Kansas and to central Colorado. A weak high will be over northeastern Minnesota at the same time.

Skies will be variably to considerably cloudy over the state through Thursday night, then mostly partly cloudy Friday. There will be the chance of a few scattered showers or thunderstorms Thursday morning. No large temperature changes are expected Thursday, but on Friday it will be not quite so warm over much of the state although temperatures will still be near seasonal normals.

Inflation, Plant Changes Hike Nuclear Plant Cost

Omaha (AP) — Inflation and plan changes have been blamed for boosting the estimated cost of Omaha Public Power District's Fort Calhoun nuclear power plant at least $22 million higher than the January estimate.

OPPD President Edward Miller Sr. announced the new total will be from $117 million to $120 million. That total would be $56 million more than estimated in 1966.

Miller said there also may be a delay of up to six months in the completion of the plant but he maintained the additional costs should be offset by lowering prospective operating costs of the new facility, estimated to save $2 million annually.

A spokesman set the possible opening date at Aug. 1, 1971, but said work is now two to three months behind schedule and there could be additional delays.

Additional men have been hired to work longer hours in an effort to compensate for the time lost, the spokesman said.

Crash At Gibbon Hospitalizes Two

Gibbon (UPI) — Two members of a Gridley, Ill., family were hospitalized in a one-car accident on Interstate 80 four miles west of here Wednesday.

Authorities said the car driven by James D. Leake, 31, went out of control, traveled 234 feet, hit a median embankment, flew 106 feet in the air and traveled 155 more feet before stopping.

Leake's wife, Roberta, 28, and son, Johnny, 2, were both injured and taken to Good Samaritan Hospital at Kearney.

Leake and two other children were not injured.

Union Aids Fund For Omaha Girl's Liver Transplant

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha union has raised $2,200 in a fund to help finance the liver transplant of an Omaha girl.

The fund for Kathy Dropinski, eight-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Dropinski, was started by local 7400 of the Communications Workers of America.

The operation, to be performed in Denver, is viewed as the only chance of saving young Kathy's life.

A donor is currently being sought for the girl.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It cannot be said that the Corps of Engineers has not warned us. This week, they advised city officials that unless there is a big demand for a lake on the Platte River near Ashland, the project will never get off the ground.

As things now stand, there are at least four major problems in connection with the Platte proposal. One is usurpration of agricultural land and the displacement of certain communities and other facilities.

To put the dam in, in other words, will mean the elimination of what is now on the site. This does not include the city of Ashland but that community still appears to be in opposition to the project.

While it will not be replaced, Ashland apparently fears the loss of surrounding agricultural operations. We know the community doesn't buy it, but Ashland is likely to gain much more than it would ever lose as a result of the dam.

The river project would bring untold numbers of people into the area, espousing Ashland to the heavy populations of both Omaha and Lincoln. Our opinion is that Ashland could experience quite a boom from the project.

Not much can be done about this problem. The Ashland opposition, if it persists, will simply be one liability for the project to be measured against the assets.

Another problem is referred to as eutrophication. This is the process of aging undergone by all lakes but in its current context refers specifically to nutrient runoffs that choke a lake with excessive plant life. It also includes the accumulation of silt.

The disappointing aspect of this thing is that a lot of people seem to think that eutrophication is a process that automatically dooms any and all lakes. They seem to envision a time when the only waters there are will be found in the rivers and the ocean.

Now, it is a fact that many lakes have become eutrophic and it is a fact that the reservoir on the Platte could become eutrophic. In fact, eutrophication is a natural process undergone by all lakes.

What all this suggests is that eutrophication is not inevitable in an extreme and that consideration alone is not enough to stop the Platte project. Eutrophication is in the area of conservation and can be treated as such.

Improved land practices, careful attention to feed lot operations, proper disposal of sewage and other activities can reduce eutrophication to a minuscule process. The problem is currently being studied by the Salt Valley Watershed District and the University of Nebraska.

The truth is that we can deal effectively with eutrophication and should proceed to do so. By the time the Platte dam were completed in 1990, we could have the entire problem of eutrophication solved.

A third problem involves the Lincoln and Omaha water supplies, both cities taking their domestic needs from the Platte. Construction of a dam could result in a lowering of the quality of our water but failure to construct the facility could result in total disappearance of our supply.

Neither of these things is a threat. Both are simply matters that need our careful attention but which might be a greater asset than a liability in considering the dam.

Finally, there is the question of a general appropriation for the project. Even with everything else being favorable, it will take some doing to get Congress to appropriate th million the project will cost.

City officials were correctly advised that active and enthusiastic support from Lincln and Omaha is essential if the proposal is to have any chance, at all. It is one of the greatest opportunities in a long time for the state of Nebraska.

'We'll Weave You A New Outfit'

An Influence On America

Nebraskans, regardless of political persuasion, should be proud of the achievements of Theodore C. Sorensen, who Tuesday night received an honorary doctoral degree from the University of Nebraska in recognition of his impact on contemporary American history.

Sorensen comes from a Nebraska family noted for its independent thought and activity in the processes of government. His father, the late C. A. Sorensen, was a Republican attorney general of the state and was instrumental in the senatorial campaigns of one of the nation's great progressives, George W. Norris. One brother was lieutenant governor of Nebraska and a candidate for governor; another played a significant role in the election of Sen. Alan Cranston of California.

Sorensen is an honor graduate of the University of Nebraska. Both his father and his mother, Annis Chaikin Sorensen, are NU alumni, as are three brothers and a sister.

The doctoral citation describes Sorensen as a man who, "perhaps more than any living Nebraskan, has influenced the course of American political thought" — mainly through his decade-long association with the late President John F. Kennedy.

Sorensen was President Kennedy's closest appointed aide and advisor and from that position of power and trust he contributed much to the vitality and spirit of the Kennedy presidential years. His writings are important, too, both as chronicle and insight on the evolution of American government.

Whether we are Democrats or Republicans, we should appreciate the provocative nature of his work and his contribution in articulating the major issues of our time.

Hardin Fits Mold

Former University of Nebraska chancellor and now Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin fits the mold of the Nixon administration. Appearing before a committee of the House, Hardin advocated that things be left just as they are.

He spoke of administration recommendations that would soon be forthcoming, of increasing the land retirement program and of continued free food stamps for the very poor.

But Hardin gave no real indication of what the administration might come up with for the years after 1970 when the current price support program expires. What he did say seemed to indicate that the administration is not yet ready to abandon price supports.

The big question, however, is what kind of supports farmers will have. Will it be a program under which they can make a decent living or will it continue as a stop-gap measure which leaves the farmer financially strapped?

If there is any move away from price supports, it appears that it will be a gradual one. Hardin and the administration have not seemed to buy the arguments of those who want a quick end to the farm program and a full return to the free market. On the contrary, they seem to recognize such an abrupt change would be disastrous for agriculture and, ultimately, the entire nation.

New Building

Chicago, Ill.

Referring to the action of the legislature as reported in The Star, July 10, why should the legislature bother to send to final reading a bill authorizing the Game and Parks Commission to construct a new headquarters building in Lincoln? Why does the commission deserve a new building in Lincoln or anywhere else in the state, on its record? It has certainly not delivered on its responsibilities for the Branched Oak Reservoir and resited Dam 10, as such responsibilities are shown in Public Works Appropriations for 1966, Part 2, Pages 2654-55.

Why not let the Game and Parks Commission prove itself, first?

The assistant director was reported a few weeks ago to have said that the commission would take action to close "immediately the Branched Oak Reservoir area to the public so that the area located near Raymond can be developed for recreational use." He said developments which will be done in three stages will cost a total of $300000. So $300,000 plus the non-existent $187,000 equals $487,000 or nearly half a million dollars. And for what?

The quotations from the source are:

Page 2654: "The Nebraska Game, Forest and Parks Commission has exercised the option for dams 2, 4, 8, 9, 10, 12, 13 and 14, and has indicated that it plans to do likewise for the Branched Oak Dam. The game commission pays all costs for lands and facilities for recreation and wildlife development and has full responsibility for managing and maintaining the facilities."

Page 2655: "It is understood that the added recreation benefits attributable to the Branched Oak Dam and the resited Dam 10 are estimated to be $187,000 annually. However, these benefits are largely due to the local investment rather than the federal investment. It would therefore appear that dissatisfaction with the recreational features of the project should be directed to the local sponsors rather than the federal government."

Non-Action Line

Lincoln, Neb.

I think the "Action Line" column should undergo either a change of attitude or a change of name.

In the "Action Line" which I used to read in the Miami Herald, the readers were getting real action on their complaints in almost every case. Here I see the majority of the letters are followed by a gentle admonition and an explanation that it's really nobody's fault; that's just the way things are.

A case in point is the instance where two state senators allegedly cursed and swore at the highway patrolman who had stopped them for speeding. A letter to the "Action Line" got no action or support for the writer, only a stuffy explanation to the effect that the law allows them to do as they please. Is this an "action" line? It wasn't until Governor Tiemann took up the issue a day or so later that there was finally some "action." This is just one example out of many.

Perhaps someone should edit the column who is a little more of a firebrand and a reformer, someone who is not affraid to ruffle a few official feathers once in a while to get things done.

Know Your Enemy

Lincoln, Neb.

Regarding Clayton Sheer's letter of July 8, it was somewhat understandable when the reactionary Legislature of this state succeeded in passing the self-defense bill, but now I truly pity those who actually believe this inhumane excuse for killing anyone any time to be a deterrent to crime in the streets.

As a Northwestern University student who has gone to school this year in that crime-ridden city of Chicago, I must now sadly admit that I would prefer walking the streets of Chicago to walking the streets of Lincoln. At least in Chicago I knew my enemy — the helmeted, uniformed puppet of Mayor Daley — but in Lincoln I'd best not venture off the sidewalks for I might wind up with a gunshot wound from any citizen for "criminally" endangering his private property.

House In Order

Bennet, Neb.

When man fails to observe the laws of nature and right living he runs into difficulties. Then to make a bad matter worse, he treats the symptoms instead of finding the cause.

Since no one is perfect, we all need to turn the sword inward instead of outward. Then lasting peace would reign again.

We can't eat our cake and have it, too. If each house in order is not set, then man will find many problems to regret. The alternative is bloodshed.

OBSERVER

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

"Have you ever seen a killdeer's nest?" The Farmer asked me this noon as we ate dinner.

"No I never have, but I would like to see one," I answered. "I know they nest on top of the ground and depend on the protective coloration of their feathers and eggs to keep them from harm."

This morning The Farmer disked the summer fallow ground. As he made a round through the field, he noticed a pair of killdeer ahead of him fluttering on the ground and wildly excited. Suspecting they were in the vicinity of their nest, The Farmer lifted the disk as he drove over the area. He glanced down and saw three eggs in a small hollow in the ground.

This evening he took me in the car through the field to the nest. I had to search the area with my eyes for sometime before spotting it.

Finally I picked up the three dark gray spotted eggs that blended perfectly with their surroundings.

Small killdeer birds are a delight to see on toothpick legs that look far too long for their plump bodies. How they can run! Shortly after hatching they learn to manipulate their stilt legs to escape the nest and predators. This is their main source of survival along with their muted colors that blend with the earth.

I felt a blend of humbleness and happiness to know that the big sunbronzed hands of gentleness that guided the roaring tractor and disk safely over a wild bird's nest belong to The Farmer.

It was dusk as we came back; so soft and gray like a cat that sleeps in the hills at the close of day. Then awakening to stretch and yawn, a swift paw reaches out to catch the last stray sunbeam of the day and devour it. Yes, dusk is so like a soft gray cat stealthily stealing over the countryside, leaving its mystical enchantment for me.

Years ago the wheat harvest and threshing time were the big work load of the season. The wheat harvest no longer is the big reaping season. Combines have changed all that. With most farmers now raising milo and corn, autumn has taken over as the main season for harvesting.

The close of this week will find most all of the wheat in our area gleaned from the fields, unless heavy rains keep farmers from getting into the fields. With the price of wheat slightly over a dollar a bushel, many farmers have lost their enthusiasm for the golden grain this year.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Inflation Problems Drawing Attention

WASHINGTON — Like one of those illuminated time-flashers, the record high interest rate of 8½ per cent fixes the eye of the beholder with the prospect that it will jump again. In a recent interview, David Rockefeller of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York indicated the rate would have to go up, altthough he did not specify the 10 per cent that other banks have felt was imminent.

Rockefeller's remedy was to relax a Federal Reserve Board regulation so that the banks could pay big depositors — $500,000 or more — a return approaching the prime rate of 8 per cent than the present limit of 6¼. Despite the earnest exhortations of Secretary of the Treasury David Kennedy, there is no guarantee the interest clock will not jump again.

On the financial page of the same issue of the Washington Post with the Rockefeller interview was a report of the upsurge in profits of three banks in the capital. One bank's profits had increased by 30 per cent in the first half of 1969.

Surging bank profits along with the record interest rate are inevitably generating a political revolt. Rep. Wright Patman, the venerable populist out of Texas whose jeremiads against the banks and the Federal Reserve system have had a lonely echo through the halls of Congress, is finding new recuits. Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, says he is ready to introduce legislation fixing the interest rate and rolling it back if that seems necessary.

A former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, Leon Keyserling, observes that the council has kept very quiet as the interest pinch has hit car and home buyers and as unemployment among blacks has jumped. Underscoring the inflationary nature of the interest squeeze, Keyserling notes that the federal government will pay an additional $9 billion to finance the national debt and keep up with current bills. That means a tougher time for the Nixon administration in holding off a deficit and reaching the goal of a balanced budget.

The ultimate direction of the Nixon monetary-fiscal policy is a question mark. The chief manager is Dr. Arthur F. Burns, who has the title of Counselor to the President. Burns was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers during the first four Eisenhower years and the populists will not let him forget the three Eisenhower recessions.

A remarkable interview with Burns in U.S. News and World Report has received less attention than it deserves. The President's economic manager seemed to be speaking from the plateau of an era long before government controls gave at least limited promise of preventing the cycle of boom-and-bust. He held out "some hope" that it will be possible to "bring the inflation under control without moving into a recession."

But the specter of "galloping inflation" haunts Mr. Nixon's counselor. That road ends in a real depression and he suggested a parallel with the runaway inflation in post-World War I Germany, which wiped out the middle class and opened the door to the Nazis.

On government spending as it relates to social policy, Burns sounds the stern note of the rugged individualist. He favors a congressional ceiling to hold down spending.

Much Credit To Von Braun For Moon Launch; German Scientist's Efforts Began In Boyhood

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. — Though many people deserve credit for the launch to the moon, the man who has been the most persistent in pushing it is a German-born scientist named Wernher von Braun. Many scientists call Von Braun the father of the space ship, and he probably deserves that title.

Even back in the pre-Hitler days when his father, a wealthy Prussian baron, was minister of agriculture in the cabinet of the Weimar Republic, son Wernher had set his heart on reaching the moon.

Von Braun, when only a schoolboy, attached himself to a couple of German space pioneers, one of them Hermann Oberth, who produced the theory of the rocket motor. They experimented together on the shores of a tiny lake at Reinickendorf, a village on the outskirts of Berlin. And in 1932 — one year before Hitler —Von Braun brought a German army team, headed by Col. Carl Becker, to inspect the start which he and Oberth had made toward rocketry.

The army at that time was not interested. Fortunately it was not until Hitler had his back to the wall in the Battle of Britain that he turned to Von Braun to develop the V-2, the rocket which London toward the end of the war. Had that rocket been available a year earlier, it's quite possible Hitler might have won the war.

When the first successful V-2 rocket soared 60 miles over the Pennemunde marshes in 1938, scientists Walter Dornberger turned to Von Braun and said, "Do you realize, Wernher, what we have accomplished? Today the space ship was born."

When the report came back that the first V- had smashed into London on June 16, 1944, Von Braun commented, "It's a success, except that it landed in the wrong place."

Actually, Von Braun was a member of Hitler's elite SS Corps, though apparently not in too good standing. For, in February 1944, three Gestapo agents burst into his quarters at 2 a.m. and hauled him off to jail in Stettin. They had picked up an indiscreet remark he had made in a railroad train compartment that his real purpose in developing the missile was not as a weapon but as a space vehicle.

There was criticism of the U.S. Army when it brought the German scientists to the United States.

Actually the Russian army, aware of the advances made by Germany toward the space age, tried to reach the German scientists first. But Von Braun, anxious to work with the allies, not the Russians, loaded his rocket team on trucks and drove from Peenemunde on the shores of the Black Baltic to Bavaria, where they surrendered to the American Army. When the Russian armies finally reached Peenemunde, they found it deserted.

Von Braun had packed up a quality of assorted bolts, springs and parts for his rocket engines, which he crated and took with him to Bavaria. They eventually reached the United States, and it took 300 freight cars to haul them across country to the army's desert proving ground at White Sands, New Mexico.

During those early days, it looked as if the United States were going to be left far behind by Russia. President Eisenhower was not particularly interested in outer space.

But a young senator from Texas named Lyndon Johnson was the chairman of the Senate Space Committee, and he kept needling the Eisenhower administration.

In the fall of 1968, U.S. troops had been sent to integrate the Little Rock, Ark., Central High School.

"Do you want to occupy Central High School or outer space?" Johnson kept needling his colleagues.

It was this needling, plus the foresight of the young German who dreamed of reaching the moon, that finally caused President Kennedy to make the momentous 1961 decision to spend $20 billion to put Americans on the moon.

Aunt Doesn't Reply To Pleas For Financial Help

By ROBERT PETERSON

Q.—"My wife and I are in our 40s, have five children. I work as a TV repairman and make about $150 weekly, but this doesn't go far as rent takes almost a third and we seem to have so many bills. Our 12-year-old son needs a major operation on his hip which they say will cost $1,500. Because of my income we're not eligible for welfare. Our only relative with money is a stingy old aunt in Indiana. We've written her two letters asking if she'd help. She hasn't even answered our letters and I'm thinking of telling her off. What should we do?"

A. — If your son needs surgery he should have it — even if you have to go into hock. Explain your economic dilemma to your surgeon and see what he suggests. Let's hope he'll quote a minimum fee. Then talk with your bank about getting a loan, and set up a strict budget for repaying it. Forget about your aunt for the time being. Maybe she didn't get your letters, or maybe she has problems of her own. And don't lose your temper — maybe she's fixing to leave you a fortune someday.

Q. — "I'm a widow, 68, live in my nine-room house, and have an insurance annuity which gives me $200 monthly for life. Son and his wife live with me. They're sort of hippie types who write poetry and keep pigeons though they're both past 40. At my persuasion, my son has tried various jobs but he always quits after a while and says he now considers himself retired. The problem is that my income isn't quite enough for the three of us. We can't keep the house repaired and I can't afford lots of things I'd like to have. But what can I do?"

A. — Perhaps selling the house and moving to an apartment just big enough for yourself would solve all your problems. This would force your son and his wife to face the realities of earning a living and making a home of their own. It would relieve you of worry about home repairs and maintenance. And the lump sum realized from the sale of your home would give you added income.

Q. — "I was shocked at your article about the thousands of Americans retiring to Mexico. Don't you agree it's very disloyal for a person to turn his back on his own country and choose to live in a foreign land? I'm a true-blue American and shall never live anywhere but in my blessed country."

A. — Sure you're a good American, but so are those retiring south of the Border. There's nothing disloyal about retiring to another country which may offer new interests and diversions and a chance to stretch pensions. Loyalty is what's in the heart. Those Americans I met in Mexico struck me as not only loyal and patriotic but splendid emissaries of American goodwill.

Confidential to W. P. of Madison, Wis.: Life is what happens to you while you're making plans for it. You're smart to have made such extensive retirement plans, but life is slipping by and you shouldn't wait any longer. At 67 you should bid your fellow lawyers adieu and get started on that leisurely, three-year tramp steamer trip around the world you've planned in such minute detail.

Poison Gas Discontinued In Ft. McClellan Training

Washington (AP) — Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor announced Wednesday a suspension of the use of poisonous gases in defensive training at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

He confirmed also that open air testing of lethal chemical agents has been suspended at Edgewood Arsenal, Md. That action was disclosed Tuesday by Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md.

The suspension follows considerable congressional criticism about the Army's use of lethal nerve gases in the open at military bases. Resor said that in the meantime a committee of civilian scientific experts will be appointed to review procedures used in the Edgewood tests as well as Ft. McClellan's training program.

A Pentagon spokesman said an example of the Alabama base's defensive training with lethal agents involved trainees decontaminating artillery shells filled with mustard gas.

Dugway Tests Continue

The Army recently reported to a House government operations subcommittee that it was conducting the open air tests at the Maryland and Alabama facilities as well as the Dugway Proving Ground in Utah, where 5,000 sheep were accidently killed last year by nerve gas.

Resor's statement made no mention of the Dugway activities.

The Army said later testing would continue at Dugway.

"A thorough study was completed recently concerning the safety procedures at Dugway and it was concluded that testing could continue safely," the Army said.

Nonlethal Use Go On

The Army said all other testing at Edgewood and training at Ft. McClellan using nonlethal chemical agents will continue.

Resor's review committee will check the procedures, equipment, facilities and regulations to make sure that open air tests and training with lethal agents are conducted in a safe manner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are restless. Avoid travel based on impulse. Key is to plan. Apparent minor details could balloon out of proportion. Realize this, and give logic equal play.

TARUS (April 20-May 20): What you want to do and what is good for you may be two different things. First, fulfill family obligation. Then you will find that creative joys are enhanced. Message soon clear.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Breakup of relationship occurs unless you get at facts. Rumors could destroy. Your desire for truth determines outcome of dilemma.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Forces are scattered. You may have to leave details to others. Many distractions indicated. Stick to basic issues. Remember health resolutions. Study best buys.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may be planning too big. Means there could be simpler way of getting what you want. Don't underrate yourself. Special favor can save much money. Ask for it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Dispute could arise over land, property. Your cycle is high. Adhere to principles; stand tall. Be original. You have much on your side. Be confident and others will back off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Light touch is best today. Avoid giving impression of arrogance, overconfidence. Key is to be receptive. Share knowledge—learn by teaching. Research is of utmost importance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Friendship could prove costly. You can entertain without being extravagant. Be yourself. Accent natural approach. If sincere, all is well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You shake off lethargy. Day features action. Recognition due for efforts. Be specific. State needs. Do so in firm but diplomatic manner. You get what you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be discreet, subtle. You could be given confidential information. Display ability to handle a secret. Keep communication lines open.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money comes your way. Don't chase it with unreasonable demands. Fine for home improvement. You can find genuine bargain. Aggressive friend paves the way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): False start if over enthusiastic. Measure moves, actions. Stress on how to handle delicate situation. Don't magnify minor disagreement. Patience is your ally.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have the ability to accumulate material goods. But you also need love. Beginning October, you get more of both — you will be happier.

58-Year-Old Woman Has Baby Girl

Johannesburg, South Africa (AP) — Johanna du Plessis, 58, a grandmother is believed to be the oldest woman to give birth to a child. She did not realize until the last minute a baby was on its way.

Eight months ago Mrs. Du Plessis began feeling sick. Doctors told her she had stomach trouble.

Tuesday morning Mrs. Du Plessis' stomach pains became so acute she thought she must be dying. She took some pain-killing tablets and told her husband, Dawie. to go to work.

A few hours later she realized what was actually happening and called in a friend who helped deliver a five-pound girl.

Mrs. Du Plessis has five children by a previous marriage and three adopted children. She has 12 grandchildren.

Records lists the world's previous oldest mother as Ruth Alice Kistler, an American who gave birth to a girl at the age of 57 in October 1956.

Rhylander Named

Plattsmouth — Clayton Rhylander is the new commander of the American Legion post here. Other officers include Tom Solomon, first vice commander, and Leonard Holoubek, second vice commander.

Snowdon Fined $12 For Illegal Parking

London (UPI) — A judge fined Lord Snowdon, brother-in-law of Britain's Queen Elizabeth, $12 Wednesday for illegal parking.

Gordon Jack Bennett, 35, brought a private prosecution against Snowdon, the husband of Princess Margaret, for blocking his car May 16.

The Mariner 2 spacecraft sent data from the planet Venus across 36 million miles of space using only three watts of power — about the amount used for an ordinary flashlight bulb.

Industrial Output Rises 5% Above Year Ago

Washington (AP) — Industrial production rose 0.7% in June to a seasonally adjusted figure of 173.9% of the 1957-59 average, an increase of 5% above that of a year ago.

The Federal Reserve Board, in its report on business conditions, said nonfarm employment also increased during June while the unemployment rate edged downward.

The over-all unemployment rate declined to 3.4% from the 3.5% figure of April and May. Nonfarm payroll employment increased by 190,000, as strong gains continued in state and local government and construction

Expansion in services and trade continued but less rapidly than earlier this year.

Production of durable goods rose to 178.1% of the standard, from 176.9 in May and 171.0 in June 1968. Nondurable goods were at 171.1, up from 170.2 in May and 162.7 in June 1968.

Farmers Demonstrate

Bastia, Corsica (UPI) — Corsican farmers, angered over recent land deals, stormed the city hall Ghisonaccia, south of here, and occupied it for over 12 hours. Ten policemen were injured in day long attempts to evict the men, who eventually left voluntarily.

Hardin Seems Behind Farm Groups' Price Support Views

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin testified before the House Agricultural Committee that price support programs for some commodities would be needed in the future.

Many observers of the secretary's testimony had expected it to be a time for "fireworks." Yet it was reported Hardin's first testimony on the future of farm programs was a quiet affair that left opposing interests on farm policy confident they could read their viewpoints into his plans.

Hardin Seems Agreeable

Since 17 national farm organizations advised Hardin last week that they preferred to retain present farm support programs with modifications, Hardin's opening statement sounded like an agreement with this viewpoint.

Albert Ebers of Seward, state Grange Master, said he was a member of the national group that issued the agreement "from 17 organizations" and he considered Hardin's statement encouraging to many people in agriculture.

Considers Land Retirement

Hardin, who has been considering some form of land retirement program to control surplus production, gave some indication he has closely followed the analysis of future farm program alternatives made by the Center for Agricultural and Economic Development at Iowa State University.

Roland Nelson of Mead, who is Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation president, said he could not identify Hardin's testimony as being out of step with Farm Bureau policy which suggests a general phazing out of present programs over a five year period.

The prospect of pleasing different farm program viewpoints was pointed out in the Iowa State study. It's summary said "a slow phasing from current programs to a long-term rental or easement program could allow existence of both programs over a period of years."

Treat Bills Separately

Hardin said he would prefer congress handle separately a good assistance food stamp bill and general farm legislation.

Ebers said he shared the viewpoint of Texas Rep. W. R. Poage, chairman of the House agricultural committee. Poage says that to secure the urban congressman's vote it would be necessary to keep the food stamp and farm program legislation in one bill.

Until his appearance Tuesday before the House agricultural committee, Hardin had been asking "for more elbow room to work on future farm legislation." He had spoken out on a few issues that might have been considered politically associated plans for the future of agriculture.

Hardin previously warned that efforts to limit the farm payments to $20,000 might be more costly to the taxpayer because of standby legislation resulting in higher payments to large cotton producers.

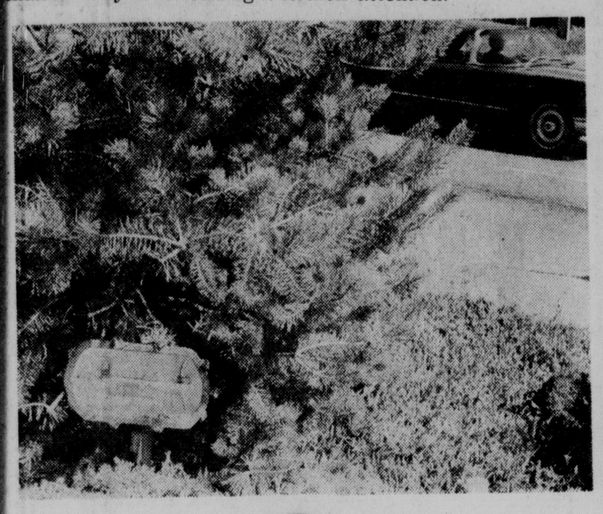
Last night, I saw a bright light from Speidell Monuments at 33rd and O. It was almost blinding and I think it came from the spotlight which usually shines on the building.
—R.K., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: About two weeks ago, a motorist ran into the light and apparently knocked it out of line. Company President Max Speidell notes it will be adjusted and says "thanks" to you for calling it to their attention.



I would like to know the chances of a 23-year-old single man for adopting a 3-year-old child. —F.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There is no law prohibiting a single person, man or woman, from adopting a child. However, ACTION LINE would be remiss for not saying the chances are slim or none that you would be permitted to do this since adoption agencies desire to place children into a home with a man and wife.

I married last November and since moving to Bennet from Lincoln, I have not received my McCalls and Ladies Home Journal. —Mrs. H.K., Bennet

ACTION LINE: Don't blame this on getting married. Notify the magazine subscription office that you have changed your name and address. If you then fail to receive the magazines, contact ACTION LINE again.

Please explain why there is a sales tax on memberships to the Nebraska State Historical Society. On a statement for dues, it reads: "Nebraska residents add 4 cents sales tax to all memberships excepting life membership which is $1". I belong to a number of organizations, including some state related bodies, and have never heard of a sales tax on dues. —F.N.W., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The $2 membership entitles one to a quarterly magazine and newsletter. There is a four-cent sales tax on the magazine and news letter subscription. With the $5 contributing membership, $3 is the contribution and $2 is the subscription cost, again on which four cents is charged for sales tax. The same goes for the supporting membership of $25—$2 goes for the subscription. However, for the life membership, $1 sales tax is charged for the entire $50, because of a lifetime subscription to the magazine and newsletter.

On April 27, I placed a $13 fabric order with National Mills, Lancaster, Tex. I saw the advertisement in Capper's Weekly newspaper. No material yet after three letters. —Mrs. Byron Homalka, Wilber

ACTION LINE: For further assistance in this matter contact: Joe Biswell, Capper's Weekly, 616 Jeffeerson, Topeka, Kan. 66607. Biswell is the classified manager of the newspaper and will endeavor to pursue your fabrics and money. ACTION LINE contacted The Fabric Center (National Mills is another name of the company according to Biswell) in Lancaster, Tex., population 11,000 just outside of Dallas. Shop owner Mrs. W. J. Risenhoover says she has never placed an ad in Capper's Weekly in her life and has been complaining to the Post Office to stop sending mail orders to her. She returns all such mail to the Post Office, she says. Since the Post Office will not reveal the renters of a Post Office box, ACTION LINE must refer you to Biswell at the newspaper office who will contact the advertisers.

Fewer Acres, Higher Yields Predicted For 1969 Nebraska Harvest

Fewer acres are expected to be harvested this year than last but higher yield prospects should produce a 1969 increase of about two percent over 1968, according to the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

The crop production is expected to be the third largest on record, exceeded only by the 1967 and 1966 volume, the division's report said.

Production of corn and oats per acre is expected to set a new record, the report said.

Corn for grain production is estimated at 336 million bushels, a new high, and 11% above the 302 million bushels produced in 1968.

Corn is expected to yield 75 bushels, two bushels higher than last year's yield.

Yield prospects for irrigated corn are promising. Moisture supplies are favorable in the eastern areas, but June freezes caught some acreage in the western sections. The crop is later than usual but recent hot, humid weather has stimulated growth.

Winter wheat production is estimated at 86 million bushels, 15% below the 101 million bushels produced last year. The acreage for harvest is the smallest since 1944, but the 31.5-bushel yield is the fourth highest.

Rye production is substantially above the 1967 and 1968 yield.

Oats production is expected to reach 26,100,000 bushels, the largest oat crop since 1962.

The barley yield of 34 bushels per acre is slightly above last year.

Both sorghums and soybeans production is expected to be lower than last year, the report said.

Production of hay at 6,377,000 tons is up over 300,000 tons from the 6,067,000 tons produced in 1968.

Sugar beet acreage is the largest since 1933. But the crop was planted late and hurt by freezing temperatures. Yield prospects are for 15 tons per acre compared.

One NU Entry Is 'Excellent,' Three Others Rated As 'Good'

Columbia, Mo. — The University of Nebraska Department of Information received one excellent and three good ratings on entries submitted in the communications contest conducted by the American Association of Agricultural College Editors (AAACE).

Receiving a blue ribbon (excellent) was a video tape of program No. 2 of "Pork Spotlight." This series of five half-hour programs was produced by the department, in conjunction with the NU Animal Science Department and KUON-TV, Channel 12, Lincoln, and aired over the Nebraska ETV Network early this year.

Red ribbons (good ratings) went to these three entries:

An interview feature on the 30-minute Department radio show, "Farm Facts and Fun," carried weekly by more than 20 Nebraska radio stations. John McLaughlin interviewed Dr. Marvin J. Twiehaus, chairman of the NU Department of Veterinary Science, on "Calf Scours Breakthrough."

A radio spot announcement promoting "Hospitality Days," an open house and orientation on home economics careers sponsored annually by the NU School of Home Economics for high school girls. The spot was voiced by Mrs. Jane Huss, NU home economics editor, with a guest.

A brochure summarizing the 1968 National Agricultural Youth Institute held in Nebraska last August. The brochure, which was distributed to NAYI delegates from Nebraska and other states, was edited byl Grant I. Johnson, assistant extension editor; with illustrations by DeLoris Clouse, publications artist.

Bus Wreck Kills 12

Taipei (UPI) — An overloaded bus plunged 30 feet off a mountain highway into a ravine in suburban Taipei, killing 12 persons and injuring 26 others. Police quoted passengers as saying the vehicle's brakes failed. Authorities said the bus, designed to carry 10 persons, had 38 aboard.

Don't miss it. News of friends on vacation, marriages, engagements, parties, PTA notes and club meetings makes good reading in the family section of "Sunday Journal and Star."

El Salvador Army Rejects Cease-Fire

San Salvador, El Salvador (AP) — Honduras accepted Wednesday a conditional cease-fire in the war with El Salvador, a peace committee of the Organization of American States announced. But Salvador troops thrusting deeper into Honduras showed no sign of halting.

Instead, the Salvador army demanded that the armed forces of Honduras "surrender or be destroyed on the battlefield" on the third day of the war between the two small Central American nations.

It was understood El Salvador demanded as part of a cease-fire a guarantee for the property and rights of the 300,000 Salvador people who live in Honduras, one of the causes of the outbreak of the war. El Salvador accused Honduras of committing atrocities against those people.

Honduras Responds

A spokesman for the OAS peace committee, which arrived from Washington in San Salvador Tuesday night, said Honduras responded to its call for a cease-fire by agreeing, provided Salvador troops withdraw to their own territory.

Salvador tanks and troops were on the march toward Tegucigalpa, Honduras' capital, after crossing the eastern frontier and it appeared the heaviest fighting raged around Nacaome.

Nacaome is 33 road miles deep into Honduras and is near a highway that leads 75 miles north to Tegucigalpa. Although Honduras denied it, El Salvador's army repeated its claim of capturing Nacaome and said heavy casualties were inflicted. It asserted 250 prisoners have been captured.

'Soccer War'

El Salvador has an army of 6,600 men to 2,500 for Honduras.

The war between the two countries, both members of the Central American Common Market — already a bloodied victim of the conflict — has been labeled the "soccer war."

But although the conflict was sparked by violence during and after soccer matches between the two countries' national teams, the roots of the problem are social and economic.

El Salvador, overpopulated and five times smaller than Honduras, has seen more than 300,000 of its citizens emigrate to Honduran territory. The two countries also have had territorial disputes that date to the days of Spanish domination.

Honduras resents the massive Salvador immigration and has made attempts to stop it.

Astronaut's Wife Obtains Divorce

Houston — Harriet Elaine Eisele, wife of Apollo 7 astronaut Donn P. Eisele, obtained an uncontested divorce in a Houston domestic relations court.

The court awarded Mrs. Eisele $500 a month child support from Eisele plus the couple's home in Seabrook, Tex. Texas does not have laws requiring alimony.

The astronaut, who married Dec. 28, 1952 was not present at the hearing.

Pompidou Announces PlanTo Combat Economic Woes

©The New York Times

Paris — Warning that sacrifices are needed to restore France's economic health, president George Pompidou announced a retrenchment program Wednesday to curb domestic demand, stimulate savings and redress the deficit in the French balance of payments.

The long-awaited decisions, disclosed after a cabinet meeting, were the outcome of the first major economic review of the new government.

Economic experts said the measures represented a relatively light touch on the brakes, a sign of the government's fears of a global economic slowdown and the social consequences of recession in France.

Inflation Battled

Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said at a press conference the aim was the "disinflation of expansion."

The key measure was the freezing of $800 million of government spending in the second half of 1969. The funds, representing about 2.5% of total public expenditures, are to be set aside for possible use later if an economic stimulus is needed.

The funds will be drawn three-quarters from civilian and one-quarter from military projects. No details were given, except that spending on education would not be hit.

Another element in the program was that government expenditures next year would be kept within a growth rate of six per cent over 1969, which would match the anticipated growth of next year's industrial output in France.

Budget Pending

The 1970 budget is expected to be presented to the National Assembly when it reconvenes in the fall.

Savings would be stimulated under the government program by lifting the ceiling on bank deposit rates.

France has been plagued by balance of payments problems since May and June, 1968, when national strikes paralyzed the country and led to subsequent sharp increases in wages and severe inflation.

AMA President Urges End Of Private Interest

New York (UPI) — The new president of the American Medical Association (AMA) called on the nation's doctors Wednesday to put aside private interests and join the fight against "the pollution of slums, of air, of noise, and of aimless populations."

Dr. Gerald D. Dorman declared in his inaugural speech at the AMA's annual convention that "the physician who looks upon medicine as a livelihood rather than a profession" and the medical society which only "concentrates on the private interests of itself and its members" are no longer tolerable.

The speech was in sharp contrast to those at previous conventions where AMA leaders concentrated their attack on the Medicare and Medicaid as forms of socialized medicine.

The struggle within the medical profession was illustrated dramatically at the convention's opening session Sunday when five dozen radical medical students took over the speakers platform to demand medical care for the poor and an end to "monopolistic, exclusionary and racist practices" in the training of physicians.

The AMA also was widely criticized earlier this month for its alleged part in blocking the appointment of Dr. John H. Knowles of Massachusetts General Hospital as assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs because he was thought to be too liberal.

Dr. Dwight L. Wilbur, the outgoing president of the AMA, received enthusiastic approval from the organization's house of delegates Wednesday for a report similar in tone to Dorman's speech.

The delegates specifically endorsed Wilbur's admonition that doctors must temper "medical sense" with "social sense."

In addition, they approved the AMA's formulating program for delivery of health care to the poor with the poor participating in planning and physicians working with all interested groups, non-medical as well as medical.

Their resolution called for the "highest priorities" to checking the rising cost of health care, expanding out-of-hospital service, developing community health centers, experimenting on new methods of delivering health care and enlarging medical and health manpower.

The 243-member house of delegates elected its speaker, Dr. Walter C. Borenmeier, as president-elect. Borenmeier, the only candidate nominated, was chosen by acclamation to take office at the AMA's convention in June 1970. A surgeon, he has been speaker of the house of delegates for three years.

Navy Keeps Close Watch On Red Ships

Washington (AP) — Without being too pushy about it, the U.S. Navy is maintaining its close surface and air surveillance over the first Soviet flotilla to penetrate the Gulf of Mexico.

The Pentagon said Wednesday the U.S. destroyer escort Thomas J. Gary, an electronics-packed radar picket ship, is following five of the Soviet vessels at a point about 250 miles west-northwest of Key West, Fla.

In addition, Navy P3 antisubmarine warfare planes make periodic checks on the Soviet formation. Three Soviet support ships — two oilers and a sub tender — have anchored about 75 miles west of Key West and 98 miles west-northwest of Havana.

The Soviet group — built around a cruiser, destroyer and frigate, all with guided missiles — is due to participate in ceremonies in Havana July 26 celebrating Fidel Castro's revolution.

The Navy isn't saying how it will continue surveillance once the Soviet ships dock in Havana but high flying U2 reconnaissance planes are based in Florida only minutes from Cuba.

Jewish Burial License Bill Substituted For 'Loss Leader'

By The Associated Press

A measure which would have prevented merchants from selling items below cost was converted in the legislature Wednesday into a bill permitting Jewish funeral homes to obtain licenses to bury the dead.

Omaha Sen. Sam Klaver offered the amendment revamping LB6 into a measure which would eliminate the special $200 burial certificate required for each body buried by funeral homes serving the Jewish faith.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, sponsor of the original version of LB6, said he agreed to let Klaver use his bill as a vehicle "because of a desire to be helpful to a colleague and to the people of Jewish extraction."

Sen. Carpenter also indicated he hadn't received the support he expected for his "loss leader" bill from the small merchants.

The Klaver amendment was adopted on a voice vote and LB6 advanced from general file on a 31-0 vote.

Essentially, the Klaver version of LB6 establishes Jewish funeral chapels as separate from the regular funeral homes or mortuaries although the Jewish funeral chapels are made subject to the same license fees as other funeral establishments.

Special treatment of the Jewish chapels grows out of the fact the Jewish religion does not permit embalming of the dead, and burial of unembalmed bodies has required special burial certificates.

Rules Suspended

Because Klaver's amendment was not germane to the original "loss leader" bill, Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, who was presiding, ruled that application of the amendment would require a suspension of the rules. The rule suspension was approved.

The incidental effect of the amendment was to lay to rest quietly the controversial bill designed to prohibit merchants from advertising "loss leaders" — items sold below cost to lure customers.

LB6 as sent to floor originally would have prohibited a merchant from selling any item at a price lower than cost plus 10% markup.

Nebraska's present "unfair sales act" requires a 6% retail markup but permits the merchant to average out this markup and thereby sell individual items below cost if desired.

Farm Electricity Tax Exemption Plan Killed

A bill designed originally to permit farmers to claim the sales tax exemption on commercial uses of electricity without putting in a separate meter was killed Wednesday afternoon on a 31-7 vote.

Farmers and other Nebraskans pay sales taxes on residential use of electricity. Although a farmer is exempt on electricity used for farming operations, he must pay on the entire bill if both residential and agricultural use of electricity is measured on the same meter.

Under an amended version of Callaway Sen. J. James Waldron's LB586, a tax would have been collected only on the first 500 kilowatt hours each month on a meter at a residence which also serves any kind of a commercial operation.

Sen. Herbert Duis of Gothenburg made the motion to kill.

Waldron said the bill was sought by rural power district representatives, but Duis said opposition to it had been voiced by D. A. Blatchford of Columbus, lobbyist for the rurally-oriented Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission cooperative.

Provoked by the Blatchford opposition, Waldron said "I completely wash my hands" of the legislation. He complained that power districts "run roughshod over this Legislature" and added: "I want the record to show that Mr. Blatchford got this bill killed."

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha suggested the amended bill would grant tax exemption over 500 kilowatt hours a month for any homeowner "who raises mice in the basement" for sale, or manufactures an occasional bookend.

Earlier, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff was rebuffed 16-25 on an amendment which would have eliminated all sales tax exemptions on electricity used for business, industrial and agricultural purposes.

Waldron attempted an amendment which would have exempted residential use of electricity from sales taxes but it lost on an 18-24 vote.

Schmit Hits Humane Society Check Plans

State Sen. Loran Schmit of David City Tuesday criticized plans by the Lincoln Humane Society to check conditions in feeder lots where cattle have died from the heat.

Bernard Patton, director of the society, had announced plans for the spot checks.

"Livestock men have enough problems during the present heat wave without having to worry about his making a nuisance of himself inspecting facilities about which he has only limited knowledge at best," Schmit said.

"It is ridiculous to assume that the livestock men are not exercising all possible care in the protection of their property, since they are the ones who are suffering the economic loss," he said. "At the same time Patton sits in an air conditioned office criticizing the stockmen, they are out in the feedlots in the heat and dust doing their best to protect their investment."

State Meat Inspection Bill Resurrected

By MICHAEL J. KAESAR
United Press International

The Legislature, after a stormy debate, voted 35-7 Wednesday to resurrect the state meat inspection bill it killed last week.

State Sen. William Wylie of Elgin moved to reconsider last week's 20-17 kill vote which came when the bill was up for its first floor consideration.

The bill, LB1367, would establish a state meat inspection program in compliance with the federal Wholesome Meat Act.

State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff blasted the State Agriculture Department's current inspection program which he said dealt only with plant sanitation.

"They don't give a damn what you put in the meat," he said. "There is no inspection of meat in the state of Nebraska by the state of Nebraska."

Dec. 15 Deadline

The federal government has given the state until Dec. 15 to start checking plants which process meat for intrastate consumption. Ninety per cent of Nebraska's meat already is federally inspected because it is sold in interstate commerce.

If the state fails to pass the measure, the U.S. Department of Agriculture would take over inspection of the remaining state plants on Dec. 15. Forty-eight other states have passed state inspection laws. Only Maine and Nebraska have yet to act.

Wylie said that if the bill passes Nebraska would get until Dec. 15, 1970, to get the state plants up to federal standards.

Small Firms

Small slaughter houses and packing plants would mainly be affected by the measure and they came under fire from Carpenter.

"It's the little guy that destroys your market and your price," he said. "He'll go out and buy anything . . . and make it look like meat."

State Sen. George Syas of Omaha also attacked the state Agriculture agency for "sloppy" inspection efforts.

He said the department "by its very nature is designed for the protection of the cattle raiser, not the consumers."

Extra Year

Syas hit the federal provision which would give the state an extra year to improve the small plants.

He said it would allow more time "to put out dirty meat."

State Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa, who opposed the bill last week, voted to revive the bill.

He said the State Agriculture Department should be given "one chance for the next two years" to handle the inspection program.

State Sen. Loran Schmit of David City agreed with Nore and said the Legislature could always undertake a house cleaning of the agency if the program didn't work.

Badly Needed

State Sen. Henry Pedersen of Omaha said the act would give Nebraska a badly needed "federal type of inspection."

Carpenter asked to have the rollcall vote read into the record "so when Sen. Pedersen runs for lieutenant governor" he would have to campaign on a platform "supporting rotten meat."

DeWitt Sen. Willard Waldo, hog farmer, said state inspection was needed because agriculture and meat production were the state's most important industries.

"Nebraska must have more than a good product, it must have the best," he said.

"The time to oppose the wholesome meat act has long passed — it was two years ago at the federal level," said State Sen. Don Hanna of Brownlee.

He said failure of the state to begin inspection would put 300 small operators "in dire jeopardy." He said there would not be enough federal inspectors to cover the plants and they would be forced to close.

Carpenter said he wondered where the state would get inspectors. He noted that the USDA pays $6,800 a year compared with $6,000 for the state.

Here is how the Legislature voted Wednesday to revive the state meat inspection bill:

For: Batchelder, Budd, Burbach, Carstens, Craft, Danner, Duis, Hanna, Harsh, Hasebroock, Holmquist, Kennedy, Keyes, Knight, Kokes, Kremer, Luedtke, Marvel, Nore, Pedersen, Proud, Robinson, Schmit, Schreurs, Simpson, Stull, Swanson, Waldo, Waldron, Wallwey, Warner, Wenzlaff, Wiltse, Wylie and Ziebarth.

Against: Reconsideration Bloom, Carpenter, Johnson, Klaver, Mahoney, Moylan and Syas.

Absent or not voting: Clark, Elrod, Moulton, Orme, Reynolds, Skarda, Whitney.

Soil And Water Resources Data Bank Bill Is Passed

By Associated Press

The Legislature Wednesday passed and sent to the governor a bill authorizing the Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission to establish, maintain and administer a "data bank" in the field of soil and water resources.

Data in the "bank" would include observations, calculations or information related to climatological, meteorological, hydrologic, hydraulic, topographic and geologic conditions and phenomena, soils, land use, water resources, sediment, biologic data for waters, water rights and related subjects.

LB384 was sponsored chiefly by Sen. Maurice A. Kremer of Aurora and was passed on a 37-0 vote.

The bill was one of two passed on final reading Wednesday. The list (E-emergency clause):

LB384 (Kremer, Moulton, Nore, Syas, Kokes)—Authorizing the Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission to establish, maintain and administer a data bank in the field of soil and water resources in the state. 37-0.

LB886 (Elrod)—Providing that compensation to hospitals for care of welfare recipients shall be based on actual per diem operating cost. (E) 42-0.

Motion To Kill Public Defender Bill Withdrawn

Sen. C. W. Holmquist Wednesday withdrew his motion to kill a pending bill extending to all of Nebraska an optional public defender system, tied in with judicial districts.

Dropping of the kill move apparently sets the stage for final approval of the measure, LB950.

Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice, chief sponsor of LB950, obtained approval Tuesday of select file amendments which serve to remove some of the objections raised earlier. Advancement of the bill was deferred because Sen. Holmquist was absent at the time.

This Week's Health Tip

Here's a health tip from your Nebraska State Medical Association:

Have you taken a good look at your favorite lake, or river front lately? Have you seen a lot of trash, too much scum and plant life, or does it have a distinct odor?

Water pollution — and air pollution — now affect millions of Americans, and could be a growing health menace in Nebraska. As an indiivdual citizen you can help prevent it, and help clean it up.

First, know the community laws which affect you personally, and observe them. This means no littering the park or river bank and obeying local rules. It may mean checking the sewage system of your summer cottage or boat.

Secondly, learn about your community's laws concerning industrial and commercial waste disposal controls. If these rules are not being enforced, you and your neighbors should ask some pointed questions now as to why waste disposal is not being properly regulated.

Small as it sounds, an individual's concern and active interest can mean a great deal. As a citizen, you can help keep our waterways clean.

Increased Foundation, Incentive Aid To Schools Proposed

Proposed revisions in the formula providing state financial assistance to public schools would increase the emphasis on "foundation" aid for all school districts and incentive payments to schools with "degree" teachers.

Sent to the floor of the Legislature by the Budget Committee was an amended version of LB667, which would increase the amount of state aid from $25 million to $35 million a year and change the formula.

Figures compiled for the committee by Sens. John Knight of Lincoln and Ramey Whitney of Chappell indicate that $13.9 million would go to foundation aid, $3.6 million would go for incentive payments and $17.5 million would be used for equalization assistance.

Foundation aid goes to all qualifying school districts.

Together, foundation and incentive payments represent about 44% of total state aid. Under LB667, their share would increase to 50%, the committee was told.

Qualifying levies for K-12 schools would be reduced from 16 to 12 mills, providing state aid to some schools which do not now qualify for assistance because of relatively low local property tax support.

Sponsors of the amendment insist that the change will encourage consolidation of schools.

LB667 would also change the per-pupil foundation aid figures: for kindergarten students, from $12.50 to $19.50; for grades one to six, from $25 to $39; for grades seven and eight, from $30 to $47, and for grades nine to 12, from $35 to $55.

Incentive payments to schools would also be boosted: for teachers with a doctorate degree, from $350 to $500; for each teacher with a six-year certificate, from $250 to $400; for master's degree teachers, from $250 to $400, and for bachelor's degree teachers, from $150 to $250.

The amendments, together with the $10 million annual increase in state assistance, would hike total foundation aid for $8.9 million to $13.9 million.

Incentive assistance would jump from $2.2 million to $3.6 million. Equalization aid would climb from $13.9 million to $17.5 million.

Amendments were formally offered to the committee by Knight with the acquiesence of Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, sponsor of the 1967 state aid law.

The purpose of raising the foundation and incentive aid, the committee was told, is to give the 50% of the school districts in the state which receive no equalization aid an opportunity to recover about 50 cents on each dollar of sales-income tax revenue paid to schools.

School Aid Hike Suggested

By Associated Press

The Legislature's Budget Committee has recommended that state aid to local schools, currently at a $25 million-a-year level, be increased to $35 million a year.

The change is called for in an amended version of LB667, sent to the floor on a 5-2 committee vote.

A similar 5-2 vote sent to the floor an amended LB65, authorizing $2.5 million for construction of a new educational television building. Originally, the bill authorized expenditure of up to $3.4 million.

Also reported out were measures which establish an executive director to supervise the Legislature's fiscal, research and bill drafting staffs and clerk's office, and put 15% of oil and gas conservation fees in the general fund.

Killed were bills appropriating $75,000 for a topographic mapping project at the University of Nebraska, and limiting funds which the State Water Pollution Control Council may administer.

Show Committee

Lincoln's Gateway Auditorium will be transformed into a bit of Mexico on Saturday, July 26, when the Garden Club of Lincoln will stage its annual flower show using the theme, "Mexico, The Land of Flowers."

Colorful displays of summer blossoms from Lincoln gardens will share the spotlight with artistic designs featuring the gods of Mexican mythology, the Indian arts, the Fiesta and the Spanish missions.

Table settings "with a Mexican flair" will include buffet and seated table arrangements, "breakfast for two" settings, and miniture ''capsule'' table arrangements.

A special Junior Division for young gardeners will have both an horticulture section and a section featuring artistic design in arrangements based on Mexican history, fiestas, bull fights, and balcony serenades, planned to appeal to young imaginations.

Show chairmen, pictured making final plans at the home of Mrs. John C. Beall, general chairman for the show and past president of the club are (seated, from the left, clockwise) Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mrs. Virgil Eno, Mrs. Jack Rodgers, Mrs. G. L. Litzenberg and Mrs. Beal. Displaying the floral wall hanging is Mrs. Everett Sommer (standing at back).

Mrs. Rodgers, club president, and Mrs. Litzenberg are in charge of the horticulture division; Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Sommer, the design division; and Mrs. Eno, the junior division.

The public is invited to attend the show (for which no admission will be charged) between the hours of 1 o'clock and 8 o'clock.

Double Wedding

Miss Mary Beth Becker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Becker of Carrier, Okla., became the bride of Gale Eugene Wehling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wehling of Diller, on Sunday, July 6, at a double wedding ceremony at which her sister, Miss Carol Joan Becker, became the bride of Richard Lee Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis of Kettering, Ohio.

The 2 o'clock service was read by Elder Ervin Funk of Springfield, Mo., and Elder L. H. Opp of Oklahoma City, at the Calvary Baptist Church in Enid, Okla. The wedding music was played by Miss Carolyn Heinrick, organist, who also accompanied Eddie Cone, trumpet soloist, Mrs. Dan Simpson and Mrs. Ellis Owens, vocalists.

The bridal attendants, Mrs. Bill Sikes, Midwest City, Okla., Mrs. Loren Wehing, Hutchinson, Kan., and Miss Barbara Heinrick, Okeene, Okla., wore Empire frocks of yellow silk crepe with bouffant coiffure veils of yellow illusion. They carried basket bouquets of daisies.

The groomsmen and ushers included James Wehling, Diller; Loren Wehling, Hutchinson, Kan., Darrell Leonhardt and Lonnie Witt, Lincoln.

Mrs. Wehling's bridal gown was fashioned of white silk organza and Chantilly lace over taffeta. Elbow sleeves and a scalloped crescent neckline accented the lace basque, and floral appliques of the lace traced with seed pearls trimmed the slim skirt and chapel train. Her illusion veil was held by a cluster of jeweled lace petals, and she carried an arrangement of pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Mr. Wehling, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, and his bride, who received her degree from Union College, will live in Shattuck, Okla., where they will teach.

LINCOLN DOES GET AROUND

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Lincoln does its share of basking in reflected glory. Who could possibly have suspected that there would be just a touch of Nebraska amid all of the pomp and circumstance that accompanied the recent investiture of Prince Charles? As incredible as it may seem — there was.

The hero in our story is Dr. Robert Charles Evans who was in Lincoln some 17 years ago when he was the guest of his cousin, Dr. Rosalind Morris, geneticist with the University of Nebraska Department of Agronomy.

During the festivities in Wales Queen Elizabeth II of England coferred a knighthood upon Dr. Evans who is president of the University of Wales at Bangor, Wales.

Dr. Evans visited Dr. Morris in Lincoln when he was en route to Nepal to join the team of Edmund Hilary which made the successful ascent of Mt. Everest. Dr. Evans, incidentally, was one of two members of the team who climbed to within 3,000 feet of the top as support for Mr. Hilary and a Nepalese who continued to the crest.

* * *

But now back to the USA — and some of Lincoln's popular summer people — namely, brides. At this moment we have in mind Miss Leanne Beers and Michael Edwards whose wedding will take place on Saturday afternoon.

On Tuesday evening Miss Beers and Mr. Edwards shared honors at a dinner for which the bridegroom-elect's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Edwards, were host and hostess at their home.

* * *

And last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. John Dudgeon paid prenuptial courtesy to Miss Beers and Mr. Edwards when they entertained at dinner at their home last Sunday evening. The guest list included members of the family.

* * *

We have guests this morning, too — and a homecomer.

The homecomer is Mrs. Hayden D. Hughes who returned home last Monday from Wiesbaden, Germany, where she spent five weeks as the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, M.Sgt. and Mrs. Clayton Hughes and their family.

When Mrs. Hughes arrived home she was met by houseguests — her son-in-law and daughter, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank Moyer and their four daughters, Linda, Wendy, Deborah and Leslie, of Hill AFB, Utah.

The weekend, however, will find Col. and Mrs. Moyer in York where the Air Force officer is to be master of ceremonies at the reunion banquet for members of the York High School class of 1939. They will remain in York for a Sunday morning breakfast at the York Country Club when the class of '39 honors those who were members of the high school faculty at that time.

The visitors will return early next week to Hill AFB where Col. Moyer will retire from his duties on July 27 after 27 years in the service.

The Allons Y Club members do their dancing during the winter months so there will be no dancing on Saturday evening, July 26. It's the Allons Y summer party — an informal patio affair at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Peterson.

* * *

It will be a big night in Nebraska City on Friday, Aug. 29. Steinhart Park will be a blaze of lights, as will Steinhart Lodge — The piece de resistance in the park will be "Fashion Spotlight, 1969" which, of course lets one know there is to be a fashion show featuring Mrs. Frank Morrison 'live' models.

In Steinhart Lodge one will find a spectacular display, a blend of antiques and modern items. Priceless heirlooms from private collections will be there.

MISS VICKI HERTZLER

Of special interest to town and campus circles this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hertzler of the engagement of their daughter, Vicki, to Don Woodburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Woodburn of Gothenburg.

Saturday, Dec. 20, has been chosen as the wedding date.

Miss Hertzler was graduated in May from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority where she served as pledge trainer. She currently is attending the University of Nebraska Graduate College.

Mr. Woodburn is a senior at the University of Nebraska where he is a member of Farm House fraternity.

Officers Elected

Meeting recently, the members of the Gamma Phi Beta Mothers Club elected Mrs. Jacob Jacobs as the new president of the group.

Also named to office were Mrs. Paul J. O'connor of Fairmont, vice president; Mrs. Wayne Marolf, Waverly, secretary; and Mrs. Ivan Olson, treasurer.

Outgoing officers, who will serve on the advisory board, are Mrs. William H. Greene, Greenwood, Mrs. Roy A. Carlson, Mrs. Lowell L. Poague and Mrs. A. E. Sultzbaugh.

IN suburbia

Travel news is once again the center of interest in the Lincoln community this morning as suburban residents continue to take to the nations highways and airways. Their friends and relatives back home are busy, too—reading the numerous postcards and letters that are arriving complete with that traditional phrase "Having a wonderful time, wish you were here."

Since the beginning of the summer Lincoln residents have included just about every state in the nation on their vacation itineraries and we even have had some news of some world travelers. It appears that suburban residents are always looking for new and exciting vacation spots. That apparent yen for adventure makes us wonder if some day in the not too distant future we might be receiving news of some summer vacations spent on the moon. Now that we have men on their way to walk on that distant planet these thoughts are not completely inconceivable.

But instead of talking about vacations of future years lets look at some that are being planned for the not so distant future.

Planning a one week vacation in northern Minnesota are Mr. and Mrs. Ron Hile and their children, Danny, Jimmy, Todd and Shari. The Hile family will leave their Maple Village home on Saturday, Aug. 2, for Cloquet, Minn. In Cloquet they will be the house guests of Mrs. Hile's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Smith and children, Patsy, Shannon, Shawn and Kelly.

All of the recent travel news hasn't been away from our city, though, and so we mustn't forget to include some news of out of town visitors.

Guests at the Park Manor home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Adams during the recent holiday weekend were their sons, Tom and John of Cincinnati, Ohio. They arrived in Lincoln on Saturday, June 28, and were accompanied by their sister, Mrs. Carl Miller and her 10-month-old daughter, Chris, of Marshalltown, Iowa. We understand that Mr. Miller motored to Lincoln on Wednesday in order to spend the Fourth with the Adams family. The visitors returned home last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeShon also have been busy filling the roles of host and hostess recently. Mr. and Mrs. DeShon entertained at a dinner yesterday evening, and their guests were Mr. DeShon's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Osdiek and family who reside in Gretna.

The Meadow Lane family of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Timberlake and their four children Karen, Diane, John, and Gary have been busy recently planning for the arrival of out of town guests. Arriving at the Timberlake home at the end of July will be Mrs. Timberlake's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farkas of Buffalo, N.Y. who will be joined here several days later by Mrs. Timberlake's brother, Robert Farkas of Los Angeles, Calif. The visitors will spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. Timberlake before returning to their respective homes.

Miss Dorthy Woster and Miss Paulette Hottovy were co-hostesses at a cook-n-carry dinner Sunday evening at Miss Woster's home. A wide variety of food was provided by the 25 guests that attended.

Abby: if he won't, you must

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a faithful reader of your column and always enjoy it when you make a reference to your husband. Does he help you with your work? And if he does, I would like to ask a favor of you. Would you mind very much if I wrote a letter to him seeking some advice on my problem?

I do so need the help of a kind, gentle, intelligent man. With your permission of course, I could have a box number so we could correspond. I would appreciate this so much.

NEEDS A MAN'S ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Occasionally I'll consult my husband for a man's viewpoint, but I'm careful not to overdo it lest I kill the goose that lays the golden eggs. Sorry, I can't offer you his services, but I'll be glad to serve as "Mrs. In-Between."

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 19, and Gloria is beautiful; but not just because she is mine. She was Homecoming Queen and got several other honors because of her looks. Well, Gloria got an engagement ring from Rick in May and they plan to be married, although no date has been set.

Gloria has been hearing that Rick has been running around with other girls, so she has been crying her eyes out. When she asked him if it was true, he said, "Sure, I just want to get it all out of my system before I get married."

Do you think Gloria should let him get away with this, or is this what men do nowadays.

BIRMINGHAM

DEAR BIRMINGHAM: A man who is serious about marrying a girl gets everything "out of his system" BEFORE he becomes engaged. Gloria should give Rick the gate, and tell him not to come back until his system is drained.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

London Designer Shows His Fall, Winter Fashions

We already know what the best-dressed men will be wearing on the moon next Sunday, but what Nadean Walker, fashion writer for the Associated Press, has to say this morning involves women's fashions in London where Hardy Amies, British designer, showed his latest yesterday. Here is the London fashion story:

London — High fashion stooped to flirtation with hippie styles as Hardy Amies opened the London fall and winter show season here today with a little bit of anything you fancy.

"There are no set lengths and no set styles," Amies said after his opening. "It's a wear anything you like collection." A few of his maxicoats and dresses with long fringed scarves would have looked right at home in Kings Road, the Chelsea heart of hippieland, while others went in for luxurious elegance.

In general, daytime hemlines were about two inches above the knee, with coats slightly longer. The silhouette, described by Amies as "body conscious," was a trimly fitted, very lightly flared Princess Line, with a long-waisted look marked by low belts.

But for evening there were many tent dresses shaped like a pyramid and resembling Arab robes. Colored jeweled embroideries in colors that verged on the gaudy, while silver and gold lame brocades looked like the beaten metal of Toledo work.

Amies had said that he would make no trousers for his couture collection, but he got around his promise by putting in a lot of boutique collection trouser suits, nearly all with tunic tops and long jackets. There were also short coulotte dresses for daytime and evening.

Winter white is very popular with Amies, and black even more so. He also likes dark Cyprus green and a deep prune shade. Some outfits in scarlet, shocking pink and golden yellow brighten the picture. Daytime materials are mottled, barklike tweeds, checks and plaids, and smooth thick woolens with a velvety surface. Velvet, satin, lace, brocades and wool crepe are used for evening and cocktail wear.

Unisex hats — snap-brimmed trilbys that would have suited a man just as well — went with all the day clothes. Shoes were in the new high-fronted—more-unisex again — with chunky two-inch heels.

Remember those fox furs women used to hang around their necks complete with glassy eyes, and tails and legs dangling in all directions? Amies put one into his collecton, another steal from the hippies.

He made one floor length tweed suit, several maxis about 10 inches off the ground, and wound up with a mustard maxicoat over black satin maxicoulottes with sequinned top.

Besides long jackets that reached the bottom of the hip, Amies made some short ones that just touched the hipline. Nearly everything was belted, either with medium width belts or shoestring ones made of leather and chain.

Bridal Courtesies

Miss Kimberly Conover and her fiance, Richard Cuba, will be the honored guests on Friday evening, when Mr. Cuba's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Cuba, will be host and hostess at dinner to be held at the Colonial Inn.

The dinner guests will include the members of the family and the bridal party for the wedding of Miss Conover and Mr. Cuba, which will take place Saturday, July 19.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest W. Conover, the bride-to-be has named Miss Lynne Gardner as her maid of honor for the ceremony, which will be solemnized at 7 o'clock in the evening at the Cathedral Of The Risen Christ.

Mrs. Joe Vercellino will attend Miss Conover as bridesmatron, and the bridesmaid will be Miss Karen Mackeprang of Crete.

Serving Mr. Cuba as best man will be Stephen Keyser, and seating the guests will be Lyle Hiatt and Barry Conover. The groomsmen will be Dan Kenny, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Joe Vercellino.

A bridal courtesy held in Lincoln last Friday evening, July 11, honored Miss Teresa Falk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Falk of Omaha, whose marriage to Ronald Evans of Omaha, will be solemnized on Saturday, Aug. 2.

Hostesses for the party, during which a linen shower was presented to the honored guest, were Mrs. L. J. Hutchinson and her daughter, Miss Marilyn Hutchinson, who entertained 16 guests at their home.

An August bride-elect who was honored last Sunday afternoon is Miss Teresa Lee Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Sullivan, who will become the bride of James F. Smith of Calloway, on Saturday, Aug. 2.

Entertaining in courtesy to Miss Sullivan were Mrs. Rudy Aksamit and Mrs. Don Muff who were hostesses to 20 guests at the home of Mrs. Aksamit. During the informal party, a miscellaneous shower was presented to the bride-to-be, who is a coed at the University of Nebraska.

A bridal courtesy was held last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Michael Stefkovich, who was hostess to 14 guests honoring Miss Lynn Ullsperger.

Miss Ullsperger, whose marriage to Thomas Hart will take place Saturday, July 26, was presented a linen shower during the party, for which Miss Sandra Hall and Miss Rosemarie Rempe were co-hostesses.

Opening lead — two of spades.

A fine declarer never permits himself to relax, even when he is playing what appears to be an easy contract to make. Anyone can do well when suits break normally; the trick is to do well when they break abnormally.

Here is a typical example. South was in three notrump and West led a spade. Declarer ducked two rounds and won the third spade with the ace. He then led the ace of clubs. When East showed out, the hand suddenly collapsed.

What had seemed a moment before to be a shoo-in for ten tricks had now taken on a decidedly different hue. South struggled for a while, but eventually went down two.

Had declarer taken the precaution of guarding against a 4-0 club break, he could not have failed to make the contract. As soon as dummy came down he should have realized that the only threat was a 4-0 club division, and he should have sought a means of protecting against that possibility.

There was a simple way of assuring the contract. Having won the third spade lead and learned that the suit was divided 4-3, he should have led a low club from his hand.

The worst that could now happen to him would be that the defense would score a club and the thirteenth spade to hold him to three notrump. The safety play was sure to work against any distrbution of the adverse cards.

It is certainly true that in most hands this unusual precautionary measure would cost declarer an overtrick or two, since nine times out of ten the clubs would be divided 2-2 or 3-1. However, this relatively cheap expenditure to make sure of the contract is easily worth the price.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

"The best weather in years," said the lock keeper at Boulter's Lock. England has been bright as a new shilling. Warm and sunny. The rolling English downs are green with grass.

Ideal cruising weather—we have a small cruiser sleeping six.

"Easy does it," said the lock keeper. "Plenty of time."

There were four boats in the lock. If you edge in at slow speed, you lose all control of steering. If you come in faster, you can't stop. Reverse slows the boat, but it's not power brakes.

He snubbed our lines on the edge of the concrete lock. Shut the gates and water poured in. The boats began to rise past the green, dripping walls until we were level with the lock edge.

☆ ☆ ☆

Boulter's Lock is one of the famous Thames locks. Edward VII brought his girl friends up here when he was Prince of Wales. (The common folk made such pointed comments on their capabilities that the place was fenced in. So the prince could be at non-hearing distance.)

All the Thames locks have boxy little English flower gardens, and trim lock keepers' houses.

There's an annual competition for the best garden. Boulter's is often the winner.

☆ ☆ ☆

It was the weekend. The fine English weather already had begun to change. A drippy rain blew in from the Channel.

Along the grassy banks the weekend fishermen put on yellow slickers and opened umbrellas. (The umbrellas must be rented. They are all apple green.)

They sat patiently with poles overhanging the water.

They rarely catch fish. But they tramp for miles along the tow path, through muddy pastures, to sit hour after hour watching the river flow by.

☆ ☆ ☆

It's pastoral land along the lazy river. In the green fields, black and white cows fed contentedly as though posing for photos by British Travel Association.

Big white swans float alongside. Most of them convoy a pair of young cygnets at this time of year. The young are a soft smoke-gray color.

A fisherman's dog came down to the bank and barked. A pair of swans headed for him hissing loudly. The dog retreated. Still barking to show that he was not being run off but had just remembered he had something more important to do.

☆ ☆ ☆

The swans are property. At one time they were the King's—stealing a swan's egg got the thief a year in stony-lonesome. Roast swan was featured on royal banquets.

Later the right to keep swans was given to two London guilds, the Company of Vintners and the Company of Dyers. (A Royal present because of a war and loss of trade.)

The keeping of swans is now one of those English traditions. (The Queen and the Dyers and Vintners presumably eat frozen chicken.)

Each year there is a colorful "swan-upping." The Livery Companies in splended robes come up the river in elegant barges.

The young cygnets are taken up — (thus swan-upping). They are marked on the beak. One filed nick for the Dyers. Two nicks for the Vintners.

Who owns which swan is determined by the convoying father swan.

The Queen gets the mavericks. The unnicked.

☆ ☆ ☆

Two swans and their cygnets followed us into Sonning Lock. They floated lightly, rising with the water.

When the lock doors opened, they floated out.

The lock keeper said: "They know the locks better than the excursion boat pilots."

"Does anybody ever eat them? I mean, did you ever have a taste of swan?"

"Not I," said the lock keeper. "I imagine they're a tough bird. No," he said, "give me a bit of Aylesbury duck and some bread sauce. If you ask me, they didn't have it as good in the old days as we today. With the supermarket and all."

Farm Automation Said Mixed Blessing

Increasing mechanization of agriculture is a mixed blessing for Nebraska's economy, according to Loren E. Casement, an assistant economics professor at the University of Nebraska.

Casement said the improved efficiencies in farming were among the causes of a migration of many productive citizens out of Nebraska.

His comments were made in a publication of the university's Bureau of Business Research.

Casement said that despite the loss of jobs, farm automation was a good sign of the diversification taking place in the state's economy, which was once devoted almost entirely to agriculture.

Failure to provide adequate job opportunities to offset the loss of farm jobs also contributed to the migration, Casement said.

Dam Would Not Hurt Watershed Land: Thomas

Salt Valley Watershed District directors were assured Wednesday by a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers official that the proposed $500 million Platte River dam "would have no major physical effect on watershed land."

Chuck Thomas, chief of planning and reports with the Omaha district office, also said the lower end of Salt Creek would be relocated so the creek would flow south of Ashland into the river below the dam. This would prevent the salt-polluted water from entering the reservoir.

The dam has been a key concern of watershed district directors because previous plans called for an arm of the reservoir to extend up Salt Creek towards Lincoln.

The plans now call for an extension towards Wahoo.

Lincoln Flood Control

Hal Schroeder, watershed district general manager, explained after the meeting that the previous plan would probably have created flooding problems for Lincoln unless flood control work was done.

Schroeder said the relocation would be beneficial to the district in providing a flood control program involving Ashland.

Thomas told directors the new channel would be built to carry the maximum amount of water from the storm.

During the meeting, Robert Crosby, counsel for the watershed district, questioned the effect the dam would have on Lincoln's water supply.

The corps of engineers official confirmed his office "would be obligated to provide water supply as good as the city presently has in terms of quality and quantity."

City officials have been concerned that a future source of water would not be the same quality the city now gets from it's underground wells near Ashland.

Faces Difficulties

Thomas said relief wells — which would be located along the downstream toe of the embankment across the Platte River — "might be a good source for water."

Thomas said the project faces a "difficult road through the reviewing agencies" before it could be approved and funded by Congress.

"There is a very delicate balance in terms of costs and benefits," he said.

The corps of engineers official said benefits must exceed the costs and a delay after 1975 in acquiring land would cause the costs to exceed the benefits.

A concern for the fate of cities located in the reservoir area was expressed during the meeting.

Thomas said that Waterloo, Memphis, Kings Lake and Ithaca would have to be relocated.

Ashland May move

"Ashland has the opportunity to decide whether or not it wants to be relocated," he said.

Thomas said that an embankment will be built by Ashland to protect the town from being flooded.

He said the corps of engineers would build and layout a new city should the citizens favor relocation.

Corps Would Rebuild

"We would build all public facilities to modern-day standards and pay residents a fair market value for their properties" he said.

Thomas said during an interview after the meeting that the sites for a new city would be determined in negotiations between the residents and the corps of engineers.

"We would rely heavily on the wishes of the residents," Thomas said.

Open-Air Food Concessions To Receive Thorough Check

Food concessions at county fairs and special community events over the state are being intensively inspected this summer, W. G. McCubbin, the State Agricultural Department's foods and diaries chief, said Wednesday.

McCubbin said food inspectors have been given a list of all county fairs and community events and dates in their areas with standing instructions to thoroughly check all food concessions.

The risk of food poisoning or contamination is many times higher for an open-air concession stand than a normal restaurant, he said.

"We are double-checking this year to make sure every precaution is being taken by food concessionaries at fairs and other events," he said.

McCubbin said food inspectors will continue regular restaurant checks, but will give priority to fairs and area-wide community events.

Boy Scouts Open Idaho Jamboree

Farragut State Park, Idaho (AP) — More than 30,000 Boy Scouts opened the nation's biggest camp-out Wednesday at their 7th National Jamboree in the lush timber country of Idaho's Panhandle.

The scouts cooked their own meals, fished, swam and romped through the 5,600-acre park.

While there was lighthearted fun, the scouts were cautioned:

"We must not forget that we are also here to rededicate ourselves to the Scout Oath law."

The speaker was Charles Hart, 16, of Woodbury, Conn. addressing scouts and leaders in a 60,000-seat natural amphitheater Wednesday.

Mountain Fall Kills Nebraskan

Boulder, Colo. (AP) — A Nebraska youth was found dead Wednesday, about 18 hours after he fell during a mountain climbing outing about 30 miles northwest of Boulder.

The victim was identified as Thomas Byron Hawkins, 20, of Omaha, who was working for the summer at Estes Park, Colo.

The Boulder County sheriff's office said Hawkins and a friend, Scott Bowie, 20, also of Omaha, were trying to scale 12,848-foot Elk Tooth Mountain just south of Rocky Mountain National Park.

Officers said the two were about 1,000 feet below the summit when Hawkins fell shortly before noon Tuesday.

Bowie reported Hawkins reached for a handhold on a rock and the rock loosened and struck him on the head. Officers said Bowie told them Hawkins then tumbled about 200 feet down a slope.

Efforts In Vain

After a vain effort to revive his friend, Bowie said he climbed down the mountain and went to Peaceful Valley Lodge for help.

Searchers had difficulty finding the spot where the accident occurred, and it was 6:30 a.m. before Hawkins was found by members of the sheriff's office and the Rocky Mountain Rescue Group.

Range Feed Condition Is Down A Point

By Associated Press

Nebraska's range feed condition on July 1 was 81%, one point below last month, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported.

The current condition is one point lower than last year's 82% and six points under the 10-year average of 87%.

Near or above normal precipitation in June resulted in improved range feed conditions for the Panhandle and southwest.

Below normal rainfall reduced the condition in most of the Sandhills and the hay crop generally was short.

The state's range cattle condition at 86% on July 1 was two points above the June figure but unchanged from the previous year. The July condition is two points below the 1958-67 average of 88 per cent, the report said.

Cool weather was favorable for cattle. But pastures were short in some areas and many cattle had not fully recovered from the hard winter. Mosquitoes and flies were not much of a problem.

Buchers Taking 6-Day Float Trip On Salmon River

Salmon, Idaho (AP) — Navy Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, his wife and two teen-age sons Tuesday began a six-day float trip down the middle fork of the Salmon River.

The trip will take them some 80 miles down the river with Don Smith, veteran Salmon River guide.

Bucher, commander of the intelligence ship Pueblo captured by North Korea, is on a three-week vacation from San Diego, Calif.

The Boys Town, Neb., graduate is to report at the end of July to the Navy postgraduate school at Monterrey, Calif., to work on a master's degree in management.

Heart Recipient Dies

Zurich (UPI) — Switzerland's first heart transplant recipient has died three months after receiving a new heart. The Swiss Doctors Association attributed the death of Emil Hoffman, 54, to what it described as serious infection. It said his new heart wtrked satisfactorily up until the time of his death.

Summer Program Among Changes In Class For Children With Disorders

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

The first summer program for elementary children with learning and behavior disorders in the Lincoln Public Schools heads several changes being made in the 10-year-old special education class.

Operated this summer at Holmes School in cooperation with the University of Nebraska Teachers College, the classes gave student teachers a practice situation and the children additional help in resolving some of their learning difficulties.

Formerly called the program for emotionally disturbed, special education officials in the school district are changing that name to a program for children with learning and behavior disorders as a more accurate identification of the problems.

Erroneously Labeled

Children referred to as emotionally disturbed and placed in the school program in the past were often erroneously labeled, according to special education director Dr. Don Sherrill. A number of problems, ranging from specific learning disabilities to behavior adjustment have been included in that classification, he said.

In addition, other problems for which the school district does not have a specific program — such as brain damage which is often different from mental retardation — may now be more appropriately handled in the unit, Sherrill pointed out.

Also changing the program will be the relocation of the unit from Park to Holmes School, the employment of a new, experienced and specially trained instructor, emphasis on behavior management techniques and construction of a "quiet room" for the students.

Added Needs

Some additional needs that are under consideration for next year are a third classroom for the unit, evaluation of the program, and provision of personnel to deal with learning and behavior disorders in regular classrooms, Sherrill indicated.

The special education unit has been limited to two classrooms and two teachers, each with seven children. This summer 13 of the 14 students were boys.

The waiting list however, exceeds 50 students, with more and more children each year identified for the program.

Get Them Functioning

"Our aim is to get these children functioning at their ability levels and out of the special program — hopefully in less than two years," Sherrill explained. Classes have generally been restricted to children with average intelligence.

Just getting a student's attention is often the starting point for a teacher in the special education unit.

Students in the special unit study in three-sided "offices" to eliminate some distractions. By fall, a soundproof "quiet room" where an aggressive student "can get his behavior under control away from an audience" is expected to be constructed at Holmes, it was noted.

Never Forced

Children would never be forced into such a room, but if they cannot be controlled and do not want to go into the "quiet room," they may be removed from the special classroom and probably sent home for the day, Sherrill said.

With the program located at Holmes, gradual integration of the students for an hour at a time into regular classrooms should be improved.

Mrs. Ruth Mulder, who has worked extensively with children having learning and behavior disorders in Kansas, joined the Lincoln staff last spring. Mrs. Frances Sheele also teaches in the unit.

Chinese Frog Said On Moon

Taipei, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese say that if astronauts find a frog on the moon it will help validate their legend that a Chinese woman got there first.

The legend has it that the woman, Chang Ngo, stole an elixir of life, fled to the moon with it and was changed into a frog.

Council's Plan For Teenage Activities Told

The Lincoln Community Council's plan for improving programs for youth emphasizes individual contact in recruiting boys and girls and coordination of youth-serving agencies, Mrs. Karen Swihart reported Wednesday.

Mrs. Swihart, a YWCA staff member and a planning associate for the council this summer, prepared the recommended course of action after several meetings with persons involved in most youth services or programs in the city.

She has been directing Community Council efforts to identify and determine the availability of programs for so-called "hard-to-reach" youths who are not participating in existing organizations because they cannot or do not want to.

Mrs. Swihart indicated that she would begin to implement the plan by contacting youth agencies and programs individually.

Some Unaware

A number of boys and girls, she pointed out, are not aware of the youth programs available and that fees can be waived for persons unable to pay them.

Other youths are not interested in the kind of program that exists and would prefer a drop-in, unstructured kind of activity. Youth-serving groups should be attempting to redesign some of their activities to meet these preferences, Mrs. Swihart noted.

The Community Council will probably initiate increased coordination among the youth programs and agencies by providing more opportunities for face-to-face contact in meetings, according to the planning associate.

Need Teamwork

Needed is more "teamwork" in providing effective referral and followup on particular people to avoid "patchwork" service.

Mrs. Swihart also recommended agency cooperation in making their services more flexible to accomodate families with varying life styles, such as one-parent families or families where both parents are working.

Incentive Increases

Warsaw (AP) — Communist-ruled Warsaw reports that the profit incentive is making trollers on public transport more zealous in spotting non-paying passengers. The officials get to keep 30% of the fines they collect from stowaways.

1984 Isn't So Fearsome Now

©The New York Times

By THOMAS O. PAINE

Administrator, National Aeronautics and Space Administration

While Orwell's old foreboding of a static, monolithic 1984 society still haunts us, the lunar voyage of Apollo 11 could open for mankind a dramatic new vision for 1984. Man can now navigate the new ocean of space; he may soon make his first landfall on the nearest of an infinity of new worlds. As in early America, human settlements on these new worlds in space can reopen the way to a pluralistic humanity. Mankind can avoid the genetic and intellectual horror of Orwell's dead-end 1984 society. Man's future destiny can now and forever remain diverse and open-ended.

But isn't the prospect of life on other worlds just science-fiction romance? Isn't this vision technically, economically, and socially impossible? No! Man will settle other worlds.

Although space-agency engineers haven't yet put their computers to work on the detailed designs and calculations, it appears likely that by 1984 a round-trip economy-class rocket-plane flight to a comfortably appointed orbiting space station can be brought down to a cost of several thousand dollars. Furthermore, a deep-space nuclear rocket shuttle between earth and lunar orbiting space stations promises to bring the eventual cost of earth-moon flights down to the $10,000 price range.

Offers Great Challenge

This goal offers formidable technical challenges to our engineers, but no greater than the challenges of the Saturn 5-Apollo system which they designed and built to carry the first men to the moon in the 1960s. To attain this goal the safety, reliability, and cost standards of current jet aircraft will have to be achieved in spacecraft by 1984, but given adequate resources NASA, teamed with American industry and universities, can do this job.

Granting practicality and economical travel costs, will men want to go to the moon? Yes!

Exploration and scientific understanding are the primary motivations for the 10 presently scheduled Apollo lunar flights. The first 30 astronauts, and the young scientists who follow them, will unravel secrets of the origin and evolution of the Solar System which led to the origin of life. Useful lunar resources for future recovery and utilization will be sought: water, oxygen, construction materials, nickel, iron, copper, uranium and other metals.

Lunar Base Predicted

By 1984 there should be a permanent lunar orbiting space station passing over each point on the moon every 14 days, and the establishment of an initial lunar surface base. Astronomers there will take advantage of the lack of an obscuring atmosphere and the moon's low gravity to study radio, optical, X-ray, and high-energy particle astronomy with a 240,000-mile base line back to terrestrial observatories. Solar and nuclear power stations will provide and reprocess air, water, light, heat and food, although the base will be far from self-sustaining, and the accommodations will be spartan. Much depends on the discovery of usable resources on the moon, which cannot yet be predicted with confidence.

We will be prospecting an entire New World, however, equal in real estate area to the Western Hemisphere; it will be surprising if the required discoveries are not forthcoming.

The moon is a fascinating new world on which to construct a new human society. People there have in effect six times their earthly strength, opening up entirely new kinds of activity (including winged athletes and dancers flying with their own muscle power). The 14-day-long nights will reveal the heavens with a brilliance and clarity never known on earth, while our blue planet waxes and wanes overhead. The 14-day-long days will be characterized by cloudless landscapes of a stark and jagged beauty even beyond that of the American Southwest.

New Set Of Problems

Although wresting a living from the moon will pose many new and difficult problems for lunar society, great new human energies will be released and a number of old earthly problems left happily behind. Continuing fratricidal wars and the nuclear balance of terror will be a welcome quarter-of-a-million-miles distant, together with germ warfare experiments, atmospheric pollution, insecticides, epidemics, urban slums, and other earthly ills.

As with the American experience of 1776, founding a new society in a demanding environment will sweep aside Old World dogmas, prejudices, outworn traditions and oppressive ideologies.

A modern frontier brotherhood will develop as the new society works together to tame its undeveloped planet for posterity. Advances in extraterrestrial societies will surely be reflected back on earth.

Variety Of Life

The true significance of Apollo 11 in the long sweep of history is thus likely to be its demonstration that man can open new worlds, where eventually exciting new extraterrestrial societies will be founded. No longer must all of humanity's hopes and fears reside on our shrinking home planet earth. Future terrestrial and extraterrestrial societies will surely develop on diverging cultural trajectories. By 1984, the first men will also have landed on Mars, opening another opportunity for mankind to evolve pluralistically.

Orwell's 1984 may still haunt us, but continuing advances in space transportation offer man new alternatives for free societies comfortably located with respect to each other.

In each and all of these there will be new opportunities for men to work together in peace and brotherhood to win bright new worlds for our descendants. Thus the specter of a monolithic imperium over all mankind may well be receding by 1984, if America has the vision and determination now to press forward in Apollo 11's fiery wake.

Apollo Launch Slightly Late

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — The launch of Apollo 11 was late, launch director Rocco Petrone said Wednesday at a postlaunch news conference.

"We were 724 milliseconds late for the start of this mission that really started eight years ago," he said.

A millisecond is one thousandth of a second.

Pope Says Moon Shot Significant

©The New York Times

Rome — Pope Paul VI, speaking Wednesday to hundreds of visitors to his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, asked for their prayers for the U.S. astronauts a few hours before the Apollo 11 moon flight began.

The pontiff reserved his comments on "the heroic protagonists of the expedition" for another occasion and spoke instead of the philosophical and religious significance of the venture.

It drew men's thought, he said, beyond the "small and closed range" of daily preoccupations and toward the cosmos.

This existed, he went on, "outside of, before and after man, who observes it, discovers it, studies it, explores it."

"Man is not the principle, man is not the cause of the world," he said. "Who would limit the reality, the all, to the thoughts of man, plays with the absurd."

Tiemann: Launch 'Most Thrilling'

Orlando, Fla. (UPI) — Gov Norbert T. Tiemann of Nebraska Wednesday termed the launch of Apollo 11 "one of the most thrilling things I have ever seen."

Tiemann said a great hush fell over the crowd during the final countdown and the first moments of the blastoff.

"It was a tremendous sight and one of the most thrilling things I have ever looked at in my life," Tiemann said. He said he believed the crowd still hasn't "comprehended what we did see."

The governor took the occasion to defend the space shots against critics who say the money could be better spent on poverty problems at home. Tiemann said he feels the U.S. is wealthy enough to have both a space program and poverty program at the same time.

"I don't think we are that destitute. A space program costs billions of dollars, but we've got more at stake here. We've got the leadership of the world at stake and if the U.S. fails in this mission in space exploration, then I feel we failed our leadership role."

U.N. Symbol Is Moonbound

©The New York Times

United Nations, N.Y. — A U.N. symbol is to be deposited on the moon in spite of efforts by some members of Congress to keep the U.N. flag off the lunar landscape.

At the request of Secretary General Thant, the astronauts of Apollo 11 are carrying with them a special U.N. airmail postcard. The card bears the text of the preamble to the U.N. Charter and also seven U.N. stamps — one of them showing the U.N.'s blue and white flag.

Record Enrollment Expected For JFK

Wahoo (UPI) — Officials at John F. Kennedy college said Wednesday they expect a record enrollment of 700 students when the school begins its fall semester in September.

The school had an enrollment of 160 when it opened in 1965. Its largest enrollment of 655 was recorded last year.

Sorensen Says Nixon Putting Off Decisions

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Former presidential aide Ted Sorensen Wednesday said President Nixon, after six months in office, continues to "put off most of the hard decisions" facing him.

For instance, Sorensen said, he believes the President is not acting boldly enough to bring an end to the war in Vietnam.

The U.S. should "pull out substantial numbers of troops" now, he said.

"We have achieved our mission," he suggested. "We have prevented the conquest of South Vietnam. We should leave."

'Not Much Effort'

And while the President concentrates on ending the war and applying the brakes to inflation, Sorensen said, "I am afraid he has not yet given much effort to other problems."

"I happen to think he has other big jobs which are equally important," Sorensen noted, including curbing the arms race, combating deterioriation in the cities and reversing the alienation of young and black Americans.

The former special counsel to President Kennedy and later, briefly, to President Johnson, outlined his views in an interview in Lincoln where he received an honorary degree from his alma mater, the University of Nebraska.

Tied To Thieu

Sorensen said he believes the administration is "still too much tied to the government of President Thieu (who) naturally hopes that American troops stay there indefinitely to prop him up."

The sooner the U.S. removes its troops, the sooner South Vietnam can reach its own "political accommodation" within itself and with North Vietnam, he said.

At home, Sorensen said, President Nixon is moving "very cautiously . . . and putting off most of the hard decisions."

That, he said, is "easier to do for the first 100 days than for the first 200 days," a mark the administration is now approaching.

Still Appeals

But, despite that Sorensen said, the President "still basically appeals to the people who elected him," including the South, the Midwest, much of the West and citizens who live in rural areas and small towns.

Sorensen said a successful manned moon landing by the Apollo 11 mission should open the way to "a cooperative effort with the Russians and others" in future space exploration.

The manned moon landing, ordered by President Kennedy in 1961 as a national goal for this decade, will be "obviously the most dramatic demonstration of this century of America's leadership in science, in technology, and in national will and determination," Sorensen said.

President Kennedy believed that the U.S. "couldn't afford to be second rate in the age of space," he noted.

Not Put Ahead

"But he did not put it ahead of improving education, health care or the cities and he did not put it ahead of achieving equal rights for all Americans.

"He felt all these things could be achieved."

But once we have realized the moon goal, Sorensen said, it will be time to "allocate some of that money to the pressing domestic needs, which are more pressing now than they were at that time."

As for his own future, Sorensen said he will decide "around the turn of the year" whether to seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat in New York previously held by his friend, Robert Kennedy.

"I won't run unless I am convinced I can win," Sorensen said.

Employment Commission Eyes Cases

The State Equal Employment Opportunity Commission reviewed 22 cases of alleged job discrimination during a three-hour executive session Wednesday.

Executive Director Reid Devoe reported the commission agreed to the closure of ten cases after effective concilllation meetings while two were held for further information.

Of nine new cases reported to the commission, seven were dismissed for lack of jurisdiction and one for no probable cause, he said. One case, on a finding of probable cause, was referred to conciliation.

Devoe said a majority of the cases involved racial discrimination complaints.

Devoe also reported that Norman Vant, project director, has resigned effective Aug. 1 to seek a master's degree and a replacement is being sought.

Vant has headed a federally-funded voluntary survey of Nebraska firms with 100 or more employes who desire assistance in securing more minority applicants for jobs.

Chadron State Record Likely

Chadron (UPI) — Chadron State College officials said enrollment at the college this fall could approach the 2,300 mark.

This is up appriximately 100 from previous projected figures. The higher prediction was accounted for by increases in the number of applications by incoming freshmen and transfer students.

Last fall 2,032 students registered at Chadron, marking the first time in history that the school broke the 2,000 barrier.

Many Vietnamese Leaving Country

©The New York Times

Saigon, South Vietnam — A growing number of South Vietnamese are departing for other countries or are hedging their economic bets because of apprehension about the outcome of the war.

According to immigration officials, requests for exit visas have increased greatly in recent weeks as talk has spread of large-scale U.S. troop withdrawals and of enemy participation in elections or a coalition government.

The officials say they have no exact count of emigration requests. But one described the increase as incredible and another termed it very unusual.

Only about 2,000 visas are being granted each month. The South Vietnamese government maintains that the manpower demands of the war prohibit the issuance of a larger number.

Nevertheless, considerably more than 2,000 people apparently leavz the country evzry 30 days, many with visas bought with bribes.

Generally, the rate of exodus reflects the uncertainty of the war situation. Thus, after the heavy enemy attacks during the 1968 lunar new year holiday there was an upsurge. But when those attacks were not repeated this year, the flow slowed.

Hearing Changed For Auditorium Liquor License

A City Council public hearing on a liquor license for the Pershing Municipal Auditorium has been changed from July 21 to July 28.

The date was changed to accommodate the attorney of those opposing the license.

The old silver dollars were nine-tenths silver and one-tenth copper. The new silver dollars will consist of a copper-nickel sandwich.

Franco Calls Succession Session

Madrid (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco called Wednesday night for an extraordinary session of the Cortes (parliament) to meet July 22 and nominate his successor as chief of state.

Franco has ruled Spain for a generation following his defeat of the Spanish republic in the civil war of the late 1930s.

It was widely assumed Franco would propose that Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 31-year-old grandson of King Alfonso XIII, be crowned upon his death.

Wheeler Goes To Vietnam; Additional Pullouts Possible

Saigon (AP) — Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, began top-level conferences with senior American officers Thursday amidst speculation that improvement of South Vietnam's armed forces may allow further U.S. troop withdrawals this year.

Wheeler arrived for a four-day visit Wednesday night, officially to assess the four week lull in fighting and to learn of the progress of the South Vietnamese armed forces in assuming more combat duties from U.S. troops.

He was met at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport by Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, and Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander in chief in the Pacific. McCain had arrived earlier from Honolulu.

McCain last month headed a military and civilian task force that worked out details of the 25,000-man pullout of U.S. forces that President Nixon ordered to be completed next month.

A U.S. Command spokesman said he did not know if McCain's arrival was part of a similar assignment. But he emphasized it was not unusual for the admiral to come to Vietnam to meet Wheeler, since they will be talking about matters in McCain's area of responsibility.

All the 25,000 U.S. soldiers and Marines involved in the initial withdrawal will be out of Vietnam by Aug. 31, leaving a total strength of around 513,500 Americans in Vietnam.

Wheeler's visit may well be prompted by Nixon's avowed hope of exceeding an end of year withdrawal of 100,000 U.S. troops.

Newsmen Barred

The U.S. Command said no newsmen will be allowed to accompany Wheeler, who will visit the command's headquarters and other field headquarters throughout the country.

Meanwhile, a U.S. military source said there is a "general feeling" a massive enemy military threat against Tay Ninh near the Cambodian border may be easing, though American forces remain ready for any assault.

The war-battered city of 50,000, named in captured enemy documents as the main target of a July assault has been attacked twice in the past 1½ months.

Strand Elected Chairman Of Resources Foundation

John Strand of York was elected chairman of the Nebraska Resources Foundation at the organization's Wednesday Meeting at the Lincoln Hotel.

Acording to Jim Monroe of Lincoln, who was re-elected secretary, the Foundation members also voted to aid and promote the newly founded Nebraska Busines Development Corporation, which is beginning to offer stock to businesmen in order to raise funds to attract new industry to the state.

The corporation was formed as the result of recent action by the Legislature.

Monroe said other action taken at the meeting included approval of plans to create a slide presentation emphasizing the availability of vocational education and opportunities in Nebraska. The presentation would be presented to high schools and civic groups, he said.

Also re-elected during the meeting was treasurer Earl Luff of Lincoln.

Flooding Hits Along Mississippi

By United Press International

The worst floods in 18 years ravaged croplands along the southern Illinois and Missouri shores of the Mississippi River Wednesday.

Crop losses in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois from the two weeks of flooding neared the $160 million mark.

Missouri sustained $113 million in crop damage and Iowa $41 million. Illinois totals were incomplete, but Col. Robert Ritz, a state civil defense official, said in four counties alone the figure approached $5 million.

Damage to homes, business firms, highways and railroad right of way will total millions of dollars more, authorities indicated.

River Recedes

At Chester, Ill., where the Mississippi River flood crest passed late Tuesday, the river receded about an inch and a half Wednesday after reaching the highest level since the July, 1951, floods. However, the Illinois 3 bypass, along the river edge, remained blocked.

As the Mississippi crest moved downstream, the main street was reopened to traffic at St. Mary's, Mo., along with its bridge link to the island community of Kaskaskia, Ill., whose 500 residents had been isolated for nearly 48 hours.

Water was spilling into 14,000 acres of valuable cotton and soybean fields in Missouri's Mississippi County, southeast of Sikeston.

Levee Thrown Up

Farmers toiled at Miller City, Ill., just above Cairo, Ill., along a Missouri Pacific Railroad embankment. The embankment was being fashioned into a makeshift levee in an effort to protect 10,000 acres of soybean fields from floodwaters, which have already spilled onto 8,000 acres of cropland in the Dog Tooth Bend area.

The Mississippi crest was being swelled by floodwaters of the Missouri River at St. Louis and the Iowa River upstream from Burlington. The Mississippi was backing up into the Ohio River at Cairo, raising it to within three inches of flood stage there.

The Iowa River crest reached the mouth of the stream Wednesday, relieving the threat to a 10-mile levee between Oakville and Wapello which protects 10,000 acres of land.

Israel Blasts Arab Houses In Lebanon

By United Press International

Israeli raiders crossed into Lebanon under cover of predawn Wednesday and blew up three houses on the outskirts of a border village, a Lebanese spokesman said. It was the first reported strike by Israelis into Lebanon since last December's raid on the Beirut Airport.

Fighting also was reported on the cease-fire lines between Israeli forces and Egyptian and Jordanian troops. In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Israel was planning a major "retaliatory blow" against the Arabs. It also charged Israel had hired foreign mercenary pilots.

A Jordanian spokesman said Wednesday night that about 60 Israeli soldiers tried to cross the Jordan river into Jordan but were driven back. He said the attempted crossing happened in the north Jordan valley, five miles south of the Sea of Galilee.

ROSE LEADS STATE WITH 69

...Brownfield, Shade, Borner, Strasheim Challenge

OPENING HOLE SHOT . . . Frank Rose finishes putt on first green.

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Norfolk — A quartet of youngsters and a 49-year-old Norfolk "oldster" led an assault on par at the Norfolk Country Club here Wednesday in the first round of the 62nd annual Nebraska Men's State Golf Championship.

A three-under-par 69 by University of Nebraska junior Frank Rose was good enough for the first round lead, but Oklahoma State sophomore Jim Brownfield was only one stroke back and Cowboy roommate Jim Shade, along with defending champion Charlie Borner, only a year out of the University of Nebraska, were at 71.

The old man cracking the young generation was Jute Strasheim, a Norfolk postal worker who also was at 71.

But while the kids set the pace Wednesday, a group of veterans were sitting back just off the pace, including eight-time state champion Bob Astleford at 72, former Iowa Masters champion Bill Feehan at 73, former state champ Dean Wilson, Jr., at 74, Fremont's Jack Flatt at 73, Lincoln city champ Larry Romjue at 74, former state king Gen. K. K. Compton at 72, Omahan Al Ludwig at 72, and State Amateur Golf Association president Don Bridge of Norfolk at 74.

But they'll all have to start playing catch-up to Rose beginning today as the skinny little kid from Fairbury goes after his first state title.

Rose played the tough par-37 back nine first and made the turn in two-under-par 35, with a 10-foot birdie putt at the 402-yard 12th hole and a 15-footer for a birdie four at the 534-yard 18th.

He continued to wield a hot putter on the front nine, running in birdie putts of 15 feet at the 144-yard 4th, six feet at the 322-yard fifth and 18 feet at the 142-yard 8th.

With the lead, Rose, a Gatorade gulper, said he would be shooting for pars today. "I'll just be going for pars and if I get any birdies I'll be that much happier," he said.

Brownfield, a roommate of local favorite Shade at Oklahoma State, three-putted the 18th hole after reaching the par five hole in two, a misfortune that kept him from tying Rose for the lead.

The 19-year-old Cozad native, making only his second state tourney appearance, also reached the 547-yard first hole in two and two-putted for a birdie.

Coach Harrio (Labron Harrio of Oklahoma State) added some distance to my drives," he explained, "and also gave me better accuracy and more consistency."

"He was more concerned about better accuracy than more distance, though, because he always says the woods are full of long knockers."

Brownfield also birdied the 8th hole with an eight-foot putt and the 15th with a four-footer.

His only bogey came at the seventh where he failed to reach the green in regulation.

Borner, the defending king, played the back nine superbly after making the turn in one over par.

The former Lincolnite, now golf coach at North Platte High School, had indicated Tuesday that he felt in order to come up with a good score on this course a golfer had to play the front side well, but it was just the opposite for Borner.

He hit birdie putts of 10 feet at the 582-yard 11th, 20 feet at the 402-yard 12th and two feet at the 470-yard 15th before taking a bogey at the 16th.

The field of 120 golfers will be cut to the low 54 and ties after today's round.

Pacesetter Triple Sun Takes Featured Sprint

. . . SONNY'S DELIGHT MISSES

By KENT SAVERY
Star Sports Writer

Early pacesetter Triple Sun held off Sonny's Delight in the stretch to capture Wednesday's featured seventh race at the State Fairgrounds.

Sonny's Delight, at the back of the slim five-horse field in the early running, moved up on the far turn but hung in the stretch as Triple Sun went on to win by three lengths in the six-furlong allowance race.

Triple Sun, owned by W. A. Morris of Superior and ridden by William Stallings, sped the distance in 1:13 3-5, best six-furlong clocking of the young 1969 meeting.

The win boosted Triple Sun's 1969 earnings to near the $6,000 mark and gave the three-year-old son of Sunlit-Kay Triple C. his third victory in 14 starts this season.

In the show spot behind Sonny's Delight was Cin W., who survived a claim of foul by Dave King, who rode last-place finisher Linda's Doc. King claimed Cin W. interfered with his horse on the first turn but stewards disallowed the objection.

The 9-5 favorite, Triple Sun returned only $5.80, $3.20 and $2.40. Sonny's Delight (2-1) paid $3 and $2.40 and Cin W. was $2.60 to show. Lum Puckeroo finished fourth ahead of Linda's Doc.

Leading jockey Fred Ecoffey rode a pair of heavily favored winners, Lady Sac, who went wire to wire in the second race, and W. L. Sawyer, who just barely held off Americanita to win the fourth by a nose.

Lady Sac, the 3-5 favorite, in the second, joined first-race winner Quilla Court to produce a skimpy $16.60 daily double on numbers 9 and 5.

Get Atom Can't Escape Priscilla's Kiss Of Death

I think Get Atom must have known your poor old Aunt Priscilla was betting on him Wednesday.

He probably figured it was like the kiss of death, so he didn't want to run. He threw jockey Vernon Sayler before the fifth race and tried to run away, but an out boy caught him before he'd gone far enough to be scratched.

Priscilla

You guessed it, though. He ran far enough so he didn't have enough left to win the race. Get Atom was fourth, making waste of my $2 win ticket. Ruddy Greek, my other $2 win selection, ran even worse in the first race.

Today I'll bet $2 win tickets on Vinseo in the sixth and Bob'n Swoon in the seventh and see if it scares them off. Maybe they can help my $100 spree fund, which has dwindled to $87.40.

Medalist Gains

Fremont — Medalist Karen Roberts of Wahoo, who paced the 53 entries in the Nebraska State Girls Junior Golf Tournament which opened here Tuesday, romped to a 6 and 5 win in her championship flight quarterfinal match here over Omaha's Ann Waldie Wednesday.

Joining Miss Roberts for Thursday's semifinal round were Nancy Kirsch of South Sioux City, Cindy Friend of Hastings and Omaha's Debbie Barg.

Playing in oven-like heat Miss Kirsch downed Stephanie Kutler of Omaha, 4 and 3, Miss Friend topped Syracuse's Cathy Morrissey, 5 and 4, while Basset's Mary Arnholt suffered the most lopsided loss, 7 and 6 to Miss Barg.

Hartack Escapes Bad Injury

Inglewood, Calif. (AP) — Veteran jockey Bill Hartack, who has won the Kentucky Derby five times including this year, escaped serious injury Wednesday when thrown from a horse which never had won a race.

Hartack, 36, was thrown from Talking Barberob shortly after the fourth race started at Hollywood Park. He was rushed to Centinela Hospital.

X-rays showed he had suffered no fractures, only bruises and contusions. He was advised to report to the track hospital for treatment early Thursday before he can receive permission to ride.

In the fourth race, for non-winners, Leona's Alibi was forced out and bumped Talking Barberob who lost his footing and went down, tossing Hartack. It was first feared the rider had suffered back injuries.

Only Tuesday had he scored his first stakes victory since winning with Majestic Prince in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness. The two lost their chance for the Triple Crown when Arts and Letters beat Majestic Prince in the Belmont Stakes.

Hartack took the $22,450 El Dorado Handicap with Fleet Surprise for his latest stakes victory. His five Kentucky Derby triumphs equalled the mark of Eddie Arcaro for the most victories is that classic for 3-year-olds.

Mets Harness Cubs, 9-5

. . . ROCK JENKINS EARLY, PULL WITHIN 3½ GAMES

By Associated Press

The New York Mets rocked Ferguson Jenkins and the Chicago Cubs for six runs in the first two innings Wednesday and then hung on for a 9-5 victory which lifted them within 3½ games of the National League's East Division leaders.

Tommie Agee triggered a four-run first inning rally with a leadoff double and then helped kayo Jenkins with a leadoff homer in the second inning.

The Cubs, with Ernie Banks leading off both rallies with a double and a single, scored four runs in the second and another in the third only to have Cal Koonce, the Mets' third pitcher, halt them in the muggy 90-degree weather.

After Agee doubled to open the game, Ken Boswell, Cleon Jones, Ed Kranepool and J. C. Martin all singled. Agee slugged his 16th homer to open the second and the Mets added still another run on singles by Jones and Art Shamsky and an infield out.

After the Cubs had closed to within one run, Al Weis hit his second homer in two games to open the fifth. Then in the eighth, Shamsky delivered a two-run, two-out homer to put the game beyond reach.

Bobby Bonds belted a three-run homer and Gaylor Perry scattered 11 hits as the San Francisco Giants edged San Diego 4-3.

It was the 13th victory in 18 games for the Giants, who are 10-2 against the expansion Padres.

Willie Davis, who hit an inside-the-park homer an inning earlier, tripled home the winning run in the fifth after an error by Jimmy Wynn let Los Angeles tie the score and the Dodgers and Claude Osteen held off Houston 3-2.

Willie Horton drove in three unearned runs with a two-out bases-loaded double in the eighth inning to break up a pitching duel and gave the Detroit Tigers and Mickey Lolich a 3-0 victory over Washington.

Carl Yastrzemski ripped four hits, including a homer, and rookie Mike Nagy fired a five-hitter as the Boston Red Sox defeated the New York Yankees 6-2.

Roberto Clemente lashed a bases-loaded single up the middle with two out in the ninth inning, driving in the tying and lead runs as the Pittsburgh scored three times and beat Montreal 8-7.

Jimmy Stewart hit a pair of home runs in successive innings, driving in five runs to key Cincinnati's 10-7 victory over Atlanta.

Lou Brock backed Steve Carlton's five-hit pitching by driving in four runs with a three-run homer and a double as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped Philadelphia 5-0 for their 11th victory in 13 games.

Brooks Robinson's single with two out and the bases loaded in the ninth inning tie and gave the Baltimore Orioles a 6-5 victory over Cleveland in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader.

The Indians took the opener 6-4 at Chuck Hinton and Ken Suarez each drove in two runs and Mike Paul choked off a ninth-inning Baltimore rally.

The rampaging Minnesota Twins swept Chicago 9-8 and 6-3 and stretched their winning streak to eight games after withstanding a 17-hit White Sox assault in the opener.

Rich Reese drove in five runs in the first game with two home runs and a single and Rod Carew swiped two bases, including home for a seventh time to break the American League record and tie the major league record set in 1946 by Brooklyn's Pete Reiser.

Dick Green, Rick Monday and Sal Bando hit two-run homers to pace the Oakland Athletics and Lew Krausee to a 6-1 victory over Seattle.

Andy Messersmith stopped Kansas City on six hits and doubled in the tying run as California defeated the Royals 4-2.

Shrine Profiles

DAN ERNST

The Shrine Bowl's South coach, Aurora's Roland Carter, will be no stranger to Dan Ernst when training camp opens Aug. 11.

Ernst

Ernst was co-captain for Carter's Aurora eleven last fall, a team that sailed through its second straight unbeaten season.

The versatile Ernst was also co-captain of the Huskies basketball team and was a three-year track letterman.

Ernst, who was an all-state choice in football, nonetheless considers a fourth sport, baseball, as his favorite. A 6-1½, 185-pounder, he hopes to go into coaching after college.

Ernst will wear No. 35 in the Shrine Bowl game.

ANDY SIBBERNSEN

An all-Metro League and all-state football choice, Creighton Prep's Andy Sibbernsen also lettered in wrestling and basketball during his high school career with the Junior Jays.

Sibbernsen

The 6-2, 220-pounder, who will be playing for the North squad in the Shrine Bowl all-star football game Aug 23, says that his selection to all-state gave him his biggest thrill in sports to date.

He said that another win for the North, like the 19-7 victory registered by the Yankee team last August, would run a close second.

Andy has been working as a truck driver this summer while he awaits the opening of the Shrine training camps Aug. 11.

He will wear No. 63 in the Shrine game.

Moose Nine Shows Better Pitching Depth As State Tournament Opens

By TOM HENDERSON
Star Sports Writer

If a manager's confidence is what it takes to win the Nebraska State Semi-Pro baseball tournament, then the Lincoln Moose should take the title hands down in Wilber July 31.

Moose interim manager Dale Braddock is filled with confidence in this year's club which he says has the best chance for the crown of any of the nine previous Moose teams to play in the tournament in the last decade.

"I think we've got the best chance we've ever had," Braddock says. "We've got the horses this year. The thing that has always hurt us before was a shortage of pitchers, and I guarantee you, this year that's one thing we're not short on," Braddock continues.

Braddock, who is filling in for Terry Hoy, who will miss the tournament while training with his National Guard outfit, has the strongest pitching staff the Moose have had in years.

Jim Butler, a righthanded control pitcher, has compiled a 6-1 record so far this season and Braddock also has University of Nebraska hurler Al Furby (3-0) and Ron Kelley (8-0) from West Point on his roster.

In addition, Phil Krous, a big righthander who has served time in the Philadelphia Phillies' farm system, has joined the team for the tourney. Krous has not been a member of the team this season, but did play for the Moose last year.

The Moose open the tournament Saturday at 3:30 p.m. against Bellevue, a mystery team to Braddock.

"I don't know a thing about them," he says. "I wish I did. I guess they have Neal Garvey, the Legion kid who set the world on fire about two years ago."

The Moose, 16-2 on the season, have been doing all right, even if they haven't "set the world on fire."

Moose second baseman Jerry Colvert leads the Dodge County League in hitting with a .600 batting average and Dick Clements, shortstop, has been hitting at over .500.

Clements, however, won't be able to play in the tournament. He is also serving a two-week stint with the National Guard and will be replaced in the lineup by Don Beckman.

Other strong stickers for the Moose have been catcher Jack Galusha, and first baseman Bob Brand but Braddock insists that the Moose have been the weakest at the plate.

"We're not hitting too good," he says. "I think our hitting has been down this year from what it's been."

But, when things are bad they have to improve. "I've got a feeling they're going to bust loose," Braddock says. "We came back from an almost certain defeat last Sunday to win in the ninth inning and I think that's the start."

In the Sunday contest the Moose trailed Lyons, 5-1, going into the ninth inning, and rallied to score four runs in that frame to knot the game, 5-all. They continued the assault in the 10th inning, rapping in two more runs for a 7-5 victory. The Moose collected 12 hits in the contest and also had 12 Saturday in a 8-6 win over Beatrice.

With confidence backed like that, it's hard to count the Moose out.

Track Fans Scarce At Decathlon Event

. . . TOOMEY SET FOR RECORD ATTEMPT

Los Angeles (AP) — Bad luck has plagued Bill Toomey almost from the day he decided to dedicate his athletic career to the rugged 10-event, two-day decathlon.

Now, nearing the end of the trail, Toomey faces two Russian and two British Commonwealth decathlon performers this weekend in an international triangular track meet in which Toomey must bear another heartache — empty stands.

Due to scheduling problems with a television network and international rules, the decathlon is scheduled for 9 a.m. at the Los Angeles Coliseum both Friday and Saturday.

The rest of the meet will be held Friday evening and Saturday afternoon.

The bad luck hit Bill again in Salina, Kan., three years ago. He and Russ Hodge, then the world record holder, competed in a decathlon with Toomey scoring 8,237 points, seven points higher than Hodge's world mark.

The mark was not allowed because certain international standards were not met by meet officials.

Toomey went on to win the Olympic decathlon championship in Mexico City last year yet the international mark still evaded him.

Now the world standard is 8,319 set by West Germany's Kurt Bendlin. But possibly a Toomey mental problem is out of the way.

"I've had a fear of the pole vault for quite some time," he said recently. "My hand was paralyzed for a time when I was 12 and I think that was on my mind, subconsciously."

So he had a noted hypnotist try to cure him of his fear, using post-hypnotic suggestion. If it works, and Toomey thinks it will, the world mark could be his this weekend.

"My best pole vault ever is 13-9½. But I've been over 14 feet with ease in practice. I think I'll be over 14 feet on Saturday and I'm going to be awfully close to that record."

Bill's predictions: 10.7 in the 100 meters, 25-2 in the long jump, 46-6 in the shot, 6-6 in the high jump and 47.3 in the 400 meters.

Then, the second day, 14.9 in the 110-meter hurdles, 148-5 in the discus, 14-1 pole vault, 215-0 javelin and a 4:35.1 in the 1,500 meter run. That comes out to 8,247 points, 17 better than Hodge's American mark and only 72 off Bendlin's world standard.

Cades Hurls, Bats Harding To Win

Dick Cades won his own Elks League baseball game Wednesday night as Kep Harding kept its pennant hopes alive with a 5-2 victory over O'Shea Rogers.

Cades limited the losers to four hits and personally accounted for four runs with a hot bat.

Kep Harding jumped out to a three-run lead in the initial frame on the first of the hurler's two homers. He also had a solo clout in the seventh.

The winners evened their league record at 4-4, while the loss dropped O'Shea Rogers to 3-5 on the season.

Jim Gore picked up his third win in a row when he shut off The Spitgot with five hits, while his mates had nine safeties and scored a pair of runs in both the fourth and sixth innings.

The Spigot, tied for fourth place in the league standings, didn't lose ground, however, when co-holder Jack's Town Tap also lost. Flynn's Motor City registered a lopsided 11-2 triumph over Jack's in the other Wednesday game.

Pirates' Shepard Out Of Hospital, To Rest In Pitt

St. Louis (AP) — Larry Shepard, Pittsburgh Pirate manager who complained of chest pains during a doubleheader with the Cardinals Sunday, was released from Jewish Hospital eWdnesday and was advised to return to Pittsburgh for rest.

Dr. Stan London, Cardinal team physician, said on Tuesday that Shepard apparently did not have a heart attack. But he said it would be best for Shepard not to rejoin the Pirates in Montreal.

Pirates coach Bill Virdon took over managerial duties.

Omaha (AP) — Indianapolis ripped off 20 hits to mash Omaha 14-5 in American Association baseball here Wednesday.

Clyde Mashore homered on Royals' hurler Jerry Cram's second pitch of the night and continued to add three hits, including a double, and drove in four runs.

Joe Patterson gave Indianapolis four hits, including a double, and Bernie Carbo chipped in with a two-run homer in the four-run eighth.

Omaha rallied to tie the score in the third and the 3-3 score held until the fifth, when the Indians knocked out Cram and continued their attack against Bill Faul and Paul Epperson.

Jim Campanis delivered a consolation home run for Omaha, a solo clout in the seventh inning. It was his seventh homer of the year.

NBC went ahead for good in the sixth inning when Dave Loos walked with the bases full to break a 2-2 tie. Bob Schmmel's triple scored two first National in the third.

Smith, Killebrew, Robinson Named To AL Squad

Boston (AP) — Rampaging Reggie Smith and perennial choices Brooks Robinson and Harmon Killebrew were among 12 reserves named Wednesday to compete the American League All-Star team for its July 22 clash with the National League at Washington.

Smith, the switch-hitting Boston Red Sox center fielder who has hit well over .400 in July to move into contention for the batting title, was picked for the outfield along with teammate Carl Yastrzemski; Paul Blair of the Baltimore Orioles; Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins; Carlos May of the Chicago White Sox, and Mike Hegan of the Seattle Pilots.

Robinson, who lost the starting third base spot on which he has held a virtual monopoly for the past few years, was picked as an infield reserve. The Baltimore standout will be playing in his 13th consecutive All-Star Game — tops among this year's AL team members.

Killebrew, the Minnesota slugger who leads the majors in runs batted in, will be making his 11th appearance. He also was picked as an infield sub along with shortshop Jim Fregosi of the California Angels and second baseman Dave Johnson of Baltimore.

John Roseboro of Minnesota and Ellie Rodriguez of the Kansas City Royals were the spare catchers named by manager Mayo Smith of the Detroit Tigers, who will pilot the AL team, and announced through the league office here.

The starting team, chosen by vote of the players and announced earlier, consists of Bill Freehan, Detroit, c; Boog Powell, Batimore, 1b; Rod Carew, Minnesota, 2b; Sal Bando, Oakland, 3b; Rico Petrocelli, Boston, ss; and Reggie Jackson, Oakland, Frank Robinson, Baltimore and Frank Howard, Washington, of.

The eight pitchers picked by Smith and also announced previously are Denny McLain and Mickey Lolich from his own Detroit staff; unbeaten Dave McNally of Baltimore; Ray Culp, Boston; Mel Stottlemyre, New York; Sam McDowell, Cleveland; John-"Blue Moon" Odom, Oakland; and Darold Knowles, Washington.

Baltimore's runaway East Division leaders lead the squad in representation with six players. Boston and Minnesota have four each, Detroit and Oakland three apiece, Washington two, and each other team the minimum of one.

The 28-player squad, boosted this year from the former 25 players because of the addition of two expansion teams, breaks down to 17 from the East Division and 11 from the West Division.

Smith, now in his third big-league season, will be on his first all-Star team.

Also making it for the first time is Blair, who was the top vote-getter among the league's center fielders this year but finished fourth in the over-all outfield voting, which was not done by position. The Oriole speedster is among the league leaders in batting, runs scored and hits.

Robinson, who has played in the game all 12 previous times he was selected, starting on six of those occasions, has a .323 All-Star batting average — high on this year's AL team.

Killebrew has played in the game eight of the times he was picked, handling three different positions — first base, third base and left field — and hitting .286 with two home runs.

This will be the sixth All-Star appearance for Yastrzemski and the fifth in a row. The three-time AL batting champion started the last two games and has a .300 over-all batting average in All-Star play.

It also is the sixth selection for Oliva, who has been named every time since his rookie year in 1964, starting on three occasions. Roseboro, the oldest member of the squad at 36 (May is the youngest at 21), will be on his first American League All-Star team but was on the National League squad five times during his years with the Dodgers. He played in two of those games, hitting one home run and batting .267.

Manager Smith followed the voting in his selections of Roseboro, Killebrew, Robinson, Blair, Oliva, Yastrzemski and Smith, but deviated from it in the other cases — partly due to the rule making it mandatory to pick at least one player from each team.

Ex-Pentagon Scientists Back Anti-Safeguard Arguments

©The New York Times

Washington — With the support of two former Pentagon scientists, the antiballistic missile opposition in the Senate introduced the argument Wednesday that the administration's Safeguard system would be built to defend an obsolete Minuteman missile force.

Basically, the argument was that fixed, landbased missiles would be made obsolete by the advent of multiple warheads on attacking missiles, known as multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles (MIRV).

Thus, the Minuteman force, which the Safeguard is supposed to defend against Soviet missiles armed with multiple warheads, would be becoming obsolete by the time the proposed ABM system could be built.

Fulbright Backed

The argument, a new one for the ABM opposition, was raised by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., at a hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and supported by Dr. Herbert F. York, former director of defense research and engineering, and Dr. J. P. Ruina, former director of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency and the Institute for Defense Analyses.

At present the nation's primary nuclear deterrent is the force of some 1,000 Minuteman missiles implanted in underground silos in the United States. Because of the threat posed by the growing force of Soviet SS9 missiles equipped with three multiple megaton warheads, the Pentagon has argued that the Safeguard is necessary ot preserve the deterrent strength of the Minutemen force.

But the two Pentagon scientists carried this argument a step further by suggesting the military usefulness of fixed, land-based missiles was being outmoded by the development of ever more accurate multiple warheads.

Thus, Ruina said that "We will have to assume that sooner or later it (the MIRV) can be made capable of destroying our land-based missile force.

Two Alternatives

This line of reasoning led Ruina to two alternatives:

Either try to stop Soviet MIRV development and testing through some mutual moratorium on testing, or eventually give up relying on the Minuteman force as the primary element of our deterrent.

A third alternative of trying to protect the Minuteman force with the Safeguard system "does not seem technically and economically attractiv to me," he said.

This led Fulbright to suggest that the administration was proposing to build Safeguard to defend an "obsolete system" — a suggestion supported by York and Ruina in terms of likely technological developm e n t s over the next decade.

Blaze Destroys Interior Of Home

Fire destroyed the contents and interior of a small frame house Wednesday at 226 N. W. 20th.

Fire officials said the residents of the home, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund O. Cornell, were not in the dwelling when the fire broke out, and that Mrs. Cornell reported the fire when she noticed smoke coming from the windows while she was mowing the lawn.

District Fire Chief Eugene Fenner said the blaze was extinguished within about 15 minutes after the fire department arrived at the scene. He said damage was "considerable" to both the house and its contents.

The fire apparently started near a kitchen stove although the exact cause of the blaze is still under investigation, said Chief Inspector John Gabarron.

Mrs. Cornell said the fire claimed several pets which were kept in the home.

Among them were four chipmunks, a cat, a dog, a parakeet and a canary.

FBI Removes Arsenal From DePugh Home

Truth Or Consequences, N.M. (UPI) — FBI agents recovered truckloads of ammunition, high explosives and guns Wednesday while searching a house that had been occupied by the founder of the right-wing Minuteman organization.

The home, which had been the underground headquarters of Robert Bolivar DePugh, 46, and his assistant, Walter Peyson, 27, was entered on a search warrant issued by the U.S. commissioner in Albuquerque. The two men were arrested Saturday.

Thousands of pounds of ammunition, hundreds of arms and high explosives were being removed by army trucks to an undisclosed location. A printing press was also found in the house which served as the command headquarters of the anti-Communist organization.

An FBI spokesman, who declined to say where the explosives were being taken, said the materials would probably not be entirely removed from the house until Thursday.

Many of the arms were found in the house and some were uncovered in a shed behind the structure.

Earlier Wednesday, DePugh and Peyson were ordered returned to Kansas City, Mo., in answer to warrants issued by federal authorities there.

U.S. Commissioner Robert McCoy of Albuquerque ordered DePugh returned to face a one-year prison sentence on a federal firearms conviction in Kansas City. Peyson was ordered returned to Missouri for jumping bail and failing to appear for trial on a similar charge.

Steel Helmets Not Enough

Tokyo (AP) — Police arrested a man and two women who stood before an art theater audience naked except for steel helmets.

Police said the trio belonged to an underground theater group called "Revelation of the Hidden."

Navy Crewmen Face Disciplinary Action For Drugs

Norfolk, Va. (AP) — Disciplinary action has been brought against 27 enlisted crewmen of the aircraft carrier Independence as a result of an investigation of drug abuse aboard the ship, a spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet Naval Air Force said Wednesday.

Twelve other men have appeared at captain's mast for "associated minor infringements," the spokesman said.

Six of the 27 cases may warrant trial by general courts-martial, which would require convening by an officer of flag rank, the spokesman reported.

Zoo Animals Not Hurt By Hot Weather

Generally the hot weather in Lincoln during the past week has not disturbed zoo animals adversely, according to city zoo officials.

Bob Spencer, director of the Children's Zoo, said about one-half of the animals were in air-conditioned areas and those outside were animals native to the area and used to this type of weather.

All the animals have shelters and are tended to and if any get too hot, they are put in their shelters or, in the case of the baby elephant especially, given a shower to cool them off, he said.

None of the animals have even been sick due to the heat, Spencer said.

At Pioneers Park, the animals were also reported to be in good condition, according to the caretaker. At the Chet Ager Nature Center in the park, though, the deaths of four animals — two gerbils, a kangaroo rat and a turtle — are presumed to have occurred due to high temperatures, an official at the center said.

Separate Deaths Cancel Couple's Planned Wedding

Richfield, Wis. (UPI) — Janice Mahler, a 24-year-old secretary, and Delbert Fliesner, a 23-year-old National Guardsman had planned to be married soon.

Tuesday, Fliesner was killed when he was crushed by a piece of heavy equipment while on active duty at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Wednesday Menomonie Falls police found Miss Mahler's body in a car not far from her home. The engine was running and a piece of garden hose ran from the exhaust pipe through a window of the car.

Police said Miss Mahler left several notes, some of them saying she could not bear to live without her fiance. She asked that she be buried alongside him.

Unitarians Elect President; Black Faction Returns

Boston (UPI) — The Unitarian-Universalist Association general assembly Wednesday elected a new president and welcomed a dissident black group back to its deliberations.

The Rev. Robert B. West, minister of the First Unitarian Church of Rochester, N.Y., received 1,025 votes to lead a field of seven candidates.

The Black Unitarian-Universalist Caucus (BUUC), which had walked out of the convention in a bitter mood on Tuesday, returned after receiving word its demands would be discussed first.

Stock Market Gets Rally Off Ground

New York (AP) — The stock market shook off two straight days of decline and got a rally off the ground Wednesday that carried the Dow Jones industrial average to its best daily gain since late April.

The DJI, which lost 11.12 points in its first two sessions this week and closed at a new 1969 low of 841.13 Tuesday, ran up a fast early lead and kept adding to it. At the close the Dow industrial was up 8.21—its best single day gain since it picked up 16.08 on April 30 — at 849.34.

A quick early lead was taken by gains over losses and retained throughout. Of 1,541 issues traded, 899 advanced and 416 declined.

There were 3 new highs for the year — set by Electronic Memories & Magnetic when issued, Electronic Memories & Magnetic preferred when issued, and Trane Co. — and 145 new lows. No new 1969 highs were set Tuesday.

Some of the companies connected with the Apollo 11 moon shot — whose successful launching was credited by an analyst with "helping the general morale a bit" — showed gains for the day.

Grumman Aircraft, builder of the lunar module, rose ½ to 29½; McDonnell Douglas, which built the Saturn rocket, rose ½ to 29½, and North American Rockwell, builder of the command module, gained ¾ to 30½.

The New York and American exchange directors are to meet Thursday to consider closing Monday, President Nixon has declared Monday a national holiday in honor of the anticipated Apollo moon landing.

Volume slipped a bit from the previous session, coming to 10.46 million shares, compared with 11.11 million Tuesday.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 2.5 to 301.2, with industrials up 4.0, rails up 1.1, and utilities up 1.0.

Prices generally were higher on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index gained 26 cents to $27.14.

Of 1,020 issues traded, 598 advanced and 238 declined.

Volume came to 3.92 million shares, compared with 4.52 million Tuesday.

Pentagon Tries To Find Out Who Leaked Polaris Report

Washington (AP) — The Pentagon has launched an intensive investigation to find out who leaked a classified report on the Polaris submarine to Congress, the Washington Post said in its Thursday editions.

The Post said more than 12 employes in two Defense Department offices had been informed they were suspects and were liable for prosecution.

Suspects were asked to take lie detector tests, the newspaper said, although the Pentagon denied any had actually taken such tests.

The report leaked to Congress labeled "Secret" was a proposal by civilian analysts that the oldest 10 of the Navy's 41 Polaris submarines be sunk to save money.

The Post said the Pentagon investigation began after the newspaper ran a story about the Polaris proposal May 23.

Daniel Z.. Henkin, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, was quoted as saying the investigation was being conducted in an effort to protect secret information but that none of the employes' rights had been violated.

Henkin said no one had been given a lie detector test, the newspaper said, but did not refute complaints of some of the people under investigation that they had been asked to take lie detector tests.

The newspaper said Pentagon investigators asked that whoever leaked the report to Congress go to a special officer and admit it, and that each of the suspects was asked to sign a statement that he did not leak the report.

Man Operating Tractor Dies; Cause Unknown

Wilber (AP) — George Vana, 72, of Wilber, died or was injured fatally late Tuesday while driving a tractor, pulling a load of wheat, on a county road near Wilber.

Sheriff John Svehla said Vana, who may have suffered a heart attack, fell from the tractor and was dragged about 100 feet.

Whether the death would be considered a highway fatality was not immediately determined.

Apollo 11 Given Number 4039

Colorado Springs, Colo. (AP) — Apollo 11 has been assigned No. 4,039 in the U.S. Aerospace Defense Command's catalogue of man-made objects in space.

Orbital analysts at the defense center in Cheyenne Mountain near Colorado Springs catalogued Apollo 11 soon after liftoff as one of 1,743 manmade objects now in space. Others, which raised the total beyond 4 000, either have returned to earth or burned up on re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The command and service module, along with the LM, was catalogued as one item — No. 4039. The S4B rocket, which separated from the command module and went into solar orbit, became object No. 4040.

The center is the command post for a worldwide network of satellite detection and tracking system which provide a constant road map of satellite activity.

Racial Violence Continues In Ohio City

Youngstown, Ohio (UPI) — Snipers fired on police from buildings in the south side of this eastern Ohio steel city Wednesday night, touching off the second straight night of racial violence.

Police said at least one person was wounded from the sniper fire in the predominantly black area. Officers used tear gas and returned fire in an attempt to rout the snipers.

John McElroy, chief aide to Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, said National Guard officers had been alerted and state Adj. Gen. S. T. Del Corso was sent to survey the situation.

Gangs of youths gathered on street corners tossing rocks and bottles at passing cars, police said. As officers arrived on the scene, the youths began running through the area smashing store windows and looting. Gunfire then came from nearby buildings.

Mayor Anthony B. Flask ordered all liquor establishments in the city to halt sales. A curfew was not imposed immediately but authorities issued a routine order for persons 17 years old and younger to stay off the streets.

Racial violence broke out Tuesday night after police dispersed a crowd of Negroes who had gathered in front of a white-owned dairy store to protest alleged mistreatment of a black customer.

The crowd broke up into small gangs of youths who set several fires, burning a drug store and an automobile.

5 Children Die In Wisconsin Fire

Wisconsin Dells, Wis. (UPI) — Five children, being looked after by a pair of young babysitters, died Wednesday when flames engulfed their frame home on the Winnebago Indian housing development near here.

Juneau County authorities said the blaze was apparently the result of the children's playing with matches.

The victims were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan White Eagle, both of whom were working at the Badger Ordnance Works near Baraboo when the fire occurred. They were identified as Horace, 5, Floyd, 4 Lois, 3, Leo, 2, and Ronald, 1.

Two Girls Escape

Authorities said Rosalee Decorah, 10, and Jeanette Decorah, 6, cousins, escaped unharmed. They said the two Decorah girls apparently agreed to stay with the children when the White Eagle's regular babysitter could not come.

Rosalee's mother Mrs. Sara Decorah, who lived next door, was checking on the children occasionally, authorities said.

They said the children were apparently playing with matches in a bedroom when some of the bedding igsited, Rosalee jumped out a window pulled Jeanette from the house . . .

Eddie Rogge, 24, a fireman and Lyndon Station police chief, heard the call over a police radio and was the first official on the scene.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

☆ ☆ ☆

Rugged peaks more than 20,000 feet high form the submerged Mid-Atlantic Ridge, a mountain chain that extends 10,000 miles from Iceland nearly to the Antarctic Circle. In this ridge, oceanographers discovered a previously unknown mountain range 50 miles long and 10 miles wide, one comparable to California's San Bernardino Mountains.

The Romans considered April sacred to Venus.

Why is rubber called rubber? The International Institute of Synthetic Rubber Producers, Inc. points out that in 1770 Dr. Joseph Priestley, an English scientist, used hardened latex (liquid rubber) to rub pencil marks off paper and coined the name "rubber."

The first census of the United States was conducted in 1790.

A brilliant Arab scholar of the 9th century, Al Khowarizmi, used the zero to advantage in his classic work Al-jebr w'al Muquabalah. The title, abbreviated, became the word "algebra." The term "logarithm" supposedly is a distortion of the scholar's name.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
